Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Grignon of Virginia, Minn., are in the city guests at the home of J. B. Grignon. J. B. Grignon has been quite ill for several weeks past with jaundice, but is able to be about.

Might Have Been a Debate.

Those who heard the Morse speech at the opera house Saturday evening thought for a minute they might be going to hear something interesting when Mr. Morse suggested to Mr. Hambrecht that they divide time during the evening. Mr. Hambrecht expressed his willingness to divide time with Mr. Morse all the rest of the week, but Mr. Morse did not take him up, so the matter was dropped.

The party at the pavilion given last night by Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Hill, Earl and George was attended by a large crowd of people, and the affair was perhaps one of the most successful social functions of the season. Dancing, of course, was indulged in by those who wished, music being furnished by the Blise ten piece orchestra. These present report a rare time.

S. H. Polderwilt died very suddenly at Merrill on Monday, having been sick only an hour. Mr. Polderwilt was born in this city forty-three years ago, and was a brother to Mrs. T. O. Timm. He is survived by a wife and four children.

Louis Livernash of Randolph was in the city on Tuesday closing up a deal for the purchase of the old Olney farm in the town of Carson, which was bought by himself and son Edmund.

SCHOOL OPENS ON MONDAY NEXT.

The public schools of Grand Rapids will open for the fall term, Monday, September 5th, 1910. Pupils will report to the departments to which they have been promoted. Pupils coming from other schools will make arrangements with the Superintendent or Ward Principals about their grading before entering.

East Side Grading.
Pupils will report as follows:--All Seventh Grade A and Seventh Grade B pupils to Miss Doherty at Howe Building, second floor; all Sixth Grade A and those Sixth Grade B pupils with surnames A to M inclusive to Miss Yankowski at Howe Building, third floor; Sixth Grade B pupils with surnames N to Z inclusive, and all Fifth Grade A pupils to Miss DeVoe at Howe Building, third floor; all Fifth Grade B pupils to Miss Jave at Howe Building, second floor; all Fourth Grade A pupils and those Fourth Grade B pupils living south of Baker St. to Miss Salisbury at Howe Building, second floor; Fourth Grade B pupils living North of Baker St. to Mrs. Dietz at Irving Building, second floor; all Third Grade A pupils and Third Grade B pupils living South of Baker St. to Miss Schwere at Howe Building, first floor; Third Grade pupils living North of Baker St. to Mrs. Dietz at Irving Building, second floor; Second Grade A and Second Grade B pupils living South of Baker St. to Miss Struck at Howe Building, first floor; Second Grade A and Second Grade B pupils living North of Baker St. to Miss Jensen at Irving Building, second floor; First Grade A and First Grade B pupils living south of Baker St. to Miss McCormick at Lincoln Building; First Grade A and First Grade B pupils living North of Baker St. to Miss Joller at Irving Building, first floor; Kindergarten pupils living South of Baker St. to Miss Quinn at Lincoln Building in the morning; Kindergarten pupils living North of Baker St. to Miss Quinn at Irving Building in the afternoon.

West Side Grading.
Pupils will report as follows:--Seventh Grade A pupils to Miss Doherty at Howe Building, East Side; Seventh Grade B and Sixth Grade A pupils to Miss McDermid at Lowell Building, second floor; Sixth Grade B and Fifth Grade A pupils to Miss Hayward at Lowell Building, first floor; Fifth Grade B pupils to Miss Gilroy at Lowell Building, second floor; all Fourth Grade A pupils to Miss Emmons at Emerson Building, second floor; Fourth Grade B pupils south of Grand Ave. to Miss Fordice at Lowell Building, second floor; Fourth Grade B pupils living North of Grand Ave. to Miss Emmons at Emerson Building, second floor; Third Grade A pupils living south of Grand Ave. to Miss Fordice at Lowell Building, second floor; Third Grade B pupils living North of Grand Ave. to Miss Jackson at Lowell Building, first floor; First Grade A and First Grade B pupils living North of Grand Ave. to Miss Griffin at Emerson Building, first floor; Kindergarten pupils living South of Grand Ave. to Miss Drowatzky at Lowell Building in the morning; Kindergarten pupils living North of Grand Ave. to Miss Drowatzky at Emerson Kindergarten in the afternoon.

Text books can be obtained at the several buildings on the first day of school. Parents are earnestly requested to see that pupils are provided with books and other necessary material promptly.

The City Superintendent will be in his office, Thursday and Friday, September 1st and 2nd from 9 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 5 p. m.

Pupils from other schools who are unable to confer with the Superintendent on September 1st and 2nd will report directly to the Principals of Ward Buildings.

C. W. Schwede, City Superintendent of Schools.

In their New Location.

The Mail Shoe Company have removed to the Wood County bank building, formerly occupied by the bank and they hope, in the course of time to get settled in their new location. They expected to be settled there some time ago, but owing to the large amount of work that is being done this summer it has been impossible to secure workmen to make necessary alterations. The location will be one of the best in town when everything is completed.

Band Concert Thursday.

The regular weekly band concert will be given on Thursday evening this week owing to a number of the members having been absent on Tuesday evening. The concert will be given on the east side.

See Tilly "Daly's Theatre."

The Marshall-Losee Second Game.

The Marshall-Losee baseball team came down on Sunday and played a game with the local which resulted in a victory for the Grand Rapids boys by a score of 5 to 0. The attendance was not very large.

City Federation Meeting.

The second quarterly meeting of the City Federation will be held at the residence of Mrs. Nels Johnson Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 6 at 2:30. This meeting is in charge of the Library Committee and they have prepared a very interesting program. Besides the regular program Miss Lattie Stearns of the State Library Commission will be in the city and will talk to the ladies giving some very interesting information in her usual crisp and humorous manner. The musical numbers promise to be a treat so a most entertaining afternoon is in store for the members.

Attended St. Paul Convention.

Those from Grand Rapids who attended the National Municipal League Convention at St. Paul last week were W. E. Wheelan, J. J. Jeffrey, Abel Nash, L. E. Phillips, Herman Abel, E. Andrews and Wm. Priebanow, all of them returning home Saturday and Sunday, reporting a most enjoyable and profitable time. About 800 were at the convention which extended from Tuesday until Friday, and it is stated that there were representatives from all over the United States and a number from Canada and Mexico. The address from this city went for the purpose of getting all possible data on the question of street paving, for it is rumored that a paved street, probably of brick, will be among the city improvements next year. The Grand Rapids representatives are also interested in the subject of street lighting, and the question of whether or not curb lighting, similar to that in the Consolidated Park, is superior to the old arc light system, which demands the use of poles, has already been discussed to some extent.

Conference Starts Tomorrow.

The annual conference and camp meeting of the Seventh Day Advent church will commence tomorrow morning at nine o'clock with a Bible study session followed by a general conference meeting. Preaching will take place at 2:45, and at four o'clock there will be a children's meeting. At 5 o'clock the young people will hold a meeting and at 7:30 there will be another preaching service.

Will Close Out Business.

J. T. Schumacher has decided to close out his stock of drygoods and ladies ready-to-wear garments in this city and has already started the work of getting things marked down to a figure where they will move quickly.

Mr. Schumacher has not decided just where he will locate as yet, but will attend to that later. He expects to close out his entire stock, fixtures and all, within the next three weeks, so as to have his business entirely closed up by the first of October.

BIG CROWD ATTENDED MARSHFIELD FAIR.

When the special train pulled out for Marshfield on Friday morning there was a big crowd on board headed for the metropolis up the line to attend the fair. The weather was ideal and everybody was happy. There were four coaches in the train, and the coaches were all comfortably full when they left here. Arriving at Vesper, the entire town got onto the train, the only ones that were left there being the station agent and an old lady and a baby. As the train was full before, those that got on at Vesper had to stand, and when Apple was reached, another large crowd climbed aboard, so that standing room was at a premium.

When Marshfield was reached the city was found to be gaily decorated with the tents and attractions of the Coney Island Carnival Company, which was going full blast. Marshfield seems to have been laid out with the special idea of taking care of street carnivals, the main street being wide enough so that a good sized tent can occupy the middle of it, and at the same time leave plenty of room each side for the passage of teams.

Woodmen Will Have Picnic.

Tomorrow the local Modern Woodmen Camp will join with the No. 1000 and Port Edwards Camps in an all day picnic at the pavilion, and all the wives and sweethearts of the members are expected to be present as well as all the members themselves.

Recital Friday Evening.

The recital to be given by Miss Ruby Natwick Friday evening is beginning to attract quite a little attention among the music lovers of the city. The affair is under the auspices of the Congregational Christian Endeavor Society and the members are working hard to make it a great success. A copy of the program appeared in last week's paper.

Have New Offices.

Pratt & Mathis, who have been located over the John E. Daly drug store since the partnership was formed, have moved their real estate office to the second floor of the Wood County National bank building, where they have a very neat and spacious suite of rooms.

Candidate for Member of Congress

on the Republican ticket, before the Primaries, Sept. 6.

It is not often that we get a chance to vote for a man for Congress that lives right here in Wood county, and when you go to the polls next Tuesday you should be sure to make a mark after Mr. Hambrecht's name.

Mr. Hambrecht has served one term in the state legislature, and he is standing right on the record he made there. It would mean something to the people of Wood county to have their Congressman from here and for that reason, if no other, your motto should be, Vote for Hambrecht.

Crack Amateurs Coming.

A series of three games will be played Saturday, Sunday and Monday afternoons between the Grand Rapids team and an amateur team from Marion. The Marion team is now recognized as the best amateur team in the state, standing at the present time totally undefeated. It is therefore certain that these three games will be close ones.

I. O. O. F. Dance.

The members of the Odd Fellows lodge will give a social dance at the pavilion on Friday evening, Sept. 2. Admission will be 25 cents and a cordial invitation is extended to all. The proceeds will go to the building fund of the society.

Charles Appel Killed.

While returning home Wednesday evening from the wedding of Ernest Appel and Miss Emma Olke of the town of Sigel, Chas. Appel, father of the groom, was instantly killed as a result of being thrown from a two seated carriage. It is thought that the team of horses were frightened by the crowd who were making a considerable amount of noise, and those who witnessed the occurrence state that the animals gained control in a very short time and ran at full speed down the road. The vehicle suddenly tipped, throwing Mr. Appel to the side of the road, breaking his neck and killing him instantly. Mrs. Sprankshy and Mr. Teske, who also occupied the rig, were injured to some extent but will recover.

Mr. Ridgman and Haugen were called as soon as possible to take charge of the injured ones. An inquest over the body of the deceased was held at the office of Justice Bart Brown and a verdict of accidental death was rendered. Mr. Appel, who was about 60 years of age, was a man well thought of by the other farmers of the community, as well as by all who knew him, and his family has the sympathy of everyone.

Attended St. Paul Convention.

Those from Grand Rapids who attended the National Marshallfield League Convention at St. Paul last week were W. B. Wheelan, J. J. Jeffrey, Roy Nash, L. E. Philcox, Herman Abel, E. Andrews and Wm. Pribbanow, all of them returning home Saturday and Sunday, reporting a most enjoyable and profitable time.

About 800 were at the convention which extended from Tuesday until Friday, and it is stated that there were representatives from all over the United States and a number from Canada and Mexico. The afternoon from this city went for the purpose of getting all possible data on the question of street paving, for it is rumored that a paved street, probably of brick, will be among the city improvements next year. The Grand Rapids representatives are also interested in the subject of street lighting, and the question of whether or not curb lighting, similar to that in the Consolidated Park, is superior to the old arc light system, which demands the use of poles, has already been discussed to some extent.

The gentlemen declared themselves highly pleased with the St. Paul convention, the trip having been a pleasure as well as the source of much valuable information. They said that on the last day there was an elaborate three mile parade composed of the delegates in addition to a mounted police force and fire department furnished by the city of St. Paul.

BIG CROWD ATTENDED MARSHFIELD FAIR.

When the special train pulled out for Marshallfield on Friday morning there was a big crowd on board headed for the metropolis up the line to attend the fair.

The weather was ideal and everybody was happy. There were four coaches in the train, and the coaches were all comfortably full when they left here. Arriving at Vesper, the entire town got onto the train, the only ones that were left there being the station agent and an old lady and a baby. As the train was about to start, those that got on at Vesper had to stand, and when Arpin was reached, another large crowd climbed aboard, so that standing room was at a premium.

When Marshallfield was reached the city was found to be gaily decorated while the main street was filled with the tents and attractions of the Marshallfield Carnival Company, which was going full blast. Marshallfield seems to have been laid out with the special idea of taking care of street carnivals, the main street being wide enough so that a good sized tent can occupy the middle of it, and at the same time leave plenty of room each side for the passage of teams.

However, very few stopped to gaze on the wonders of the carnival in the morning, as nearly everybody wanted to see the local team waltz the Marshallfield boys at baseball. They were not disappointed, altho the game was too one-sided to be as interesting as it otherwise would have been.

Of course we expected to beat them and they expected to be beaten, as all of our players are salaried men, and all of theirs are home boys. However one of the fans up there could not conceal the fact that the pitcher they had secured for the day had never lost a game. Of course this made us a bit nervous, but when Nelson, the first man to bat, stepped up and about the third ball rapped out a home run, things did not look especially blue.

The boys did not all bat home runs, but most of them did hit something, and when it was all over the score was 14 to 2 in favor of Grand Rapids. People from Marshallfield were thoroughly disgusted with our team and most of them went home before the game was over.

This ended the morning's entertainment, but by the time dinner was over the horses were out onto the track warming up for the afternoon's races. We don't know much about horses and horse racing, but there seemed to be about the usual number in each race, and they took about the usual amount of time to get started, and the fellow that does the hollering thru the megaphone seemed to be about as excited as such fellows generally get, so we concluded that the races were all right and up to standard. Oh, yes, this same fellow with the megaphone had a red tag that he would wave occasionally, but we could not discover what this was done for. Guess it did not make much difference, anyway, for nobody paid any attention to it.

Between the races there was a family of Japanese equilibristas who performed a number of stunts that were quite interesting. Also a man who did some fancy shooting with shot guns, rifles and revolvers, and he seemed to be able to hit anything that was thrown up, from a mark the size of a pea to an ordinary tomato can, with either a rifle or shot gun.

These attractions occupied the entire afternoon and everybody seemed to be well satisfied with the program that had been prepared.

There were some fairly good exhibits on the grounds, altho the drought of the past season has cut down the crops to a large extent and stunted the growth of nearly everything, so there were no records broken along this line. One of the surprising things was the exhibition of a number of apples that were raised in Wood County notwithstanding the fact of the late frosts last spring that were supposed to have killed everything in this line. There were also some nice animals exhibited, altho the display was not large.

The attendance on Friday afternoon was very large, the grand stand being filled, while as many more seemed to be standing in that immediate vicinity, while a large number were scattered about the grounds.

After supper the Carnival Company were running full blast on the streets and from the crowd that was out it was evident that the attractions were receiving pretty good patronage.

The excursion train was to start home at eleven o'clock, but for some reason or other it was about an hour late in getting away, making it rather unpleasant for a tired lot of excursionists, but nobody seemed inclined to kick, and everybody was well satisfied with the day's entertainment. The band went up from here and furnished the music during the day at the grounds.

Crack Amateurs Coming.

A series of three games will be played Saturday, Sunday and Monday afternoons between the Grand Rapids team and an amateur team from Marion. The Marion team is now recognized as the best amateur team in the state, standing at the present time totally undefeated. It is therefore certain that these three games will be close ones.

I. O. O. F. Dance.

The members of the Odd Fellows lodge will give a social dance at the pavilion on Friday evening, Sept. 2. Admission will be 25 cents and a cordial invitation is extended to all. The proceeds will go to the building fund of the society.

Charles Appel Killed.

While returning home Wednesday evening from the wedding of Ernest Appel and Miss Emma Olke of the town of Sigel, Chas. Appel, father of the groom, was instantly killed as a result of being thrown from a two-seated carriage. It is thought that the team of horses were making a considerable amount of noise, and those who witnessed the occurrence state that the animals gained control in a very short time and ran at full speed down the road. The vehicle suddenly tipped, throwing Mr. Appel to the side of the road, breaking his neck and killing him instantly. Mrs. Spradsky and Mr. Teske, who also occupied the rig, were injured to some extent but will recover.

Mrs. Ridgman and Hungen were called as soon as possible to take charge of the injured ones. An inquest over the body of the deceased was held at the office of Justice Bart Brown and a verdict of accidental death was rendered. Mr. Appel, who was about 60 years of age, was a man well thought of by the other farmers of the community as well as by all who knew him, and his family has the sympathy of everyone.

Woodmen Will Have Picnic.

Tomorrow the local Modern Woodmen Camp will join with the Nekeena and Port Edwards Camps in an all day picnic at the pavilion, and all the wives and sweethearts of the members are expected to be present as well as all the members themselves. A general good time has been planned, and in the evening there will be a dance at which all are asked to remain. Music will be furnished by the Bliss orchestra.

Recital Friday Evening.

The recital to be given by Miss Ruby Nettie Friday evening is beginning to attract quite a little attention among the music lovers of the city. The affair is under the auspices of the Congregational Christian Endeavor Society and the members are working hard to make it a great success. A copy of the program appeared in last week's paper.

Candidate for Member of Congress

on the Republican ticket, before the Primaries, Sept. 6.

Geo. P. Hambrecht

It is not often that we get a chance to vote for a man for Congress that lives right here in Wood county, and when you go to the polls next Tuesday you should be sure to make a mark after Mr. Hambrecht's name.

GRAND RAPIDS, WIS.

LARGE AND SMALL FAMILIES.

Where the population is largely agricultural and isolated, and where labor is scarce, the husbandman is proud to raise a large family, for the boys in time will help to lift the labor from his shoulders, and also there is always plenty of work for the girls to do about the farm. Moreover, food is plentiful and other desires are few, but no such stimulus for a large family exists in urban life, where it is often necessary to live in a flat, the very limitations of which point to the inadvisability of a numerous progeny, says Indianapolis Star. Moreover, as the individual rises in the social scale former desires become present needs. The coming of numerous children would mean the sacrifice of these needs by the parents, the descent to a lower standard of living, and the parents will not consent. Finally science has shown that a small family well taken care of makes a better showing in future generations than a large family poorly looked after. The fewer children of the well provided-for family will actually show a more numerous progeny in the third generation than will the underfed and neglected children of the larger family. Eugenics is a big question, and a conscientious investigation of it will convince anyone that dogmatic statements in that field is a hazardous performance. It is a general rule in biology that species with the most numerous offspring are those that bring fewest perfect and efficient individuals to maturity.

A Rhode Island traveling agent who has been disappointed in the demand for a certain section for the fireless cookers which he was offering, discovered that the farmers of "Little Rhody" have taken to the use of their incubators for summer cooking. Like the discovery of roasting pig in China, this utilization of the incubator was the result of accident. A husband who had forgotten to put on the pork and beans in accordance with a promise to a wife "out shopping," dashed the beans into an incubator, thus saving his bacon at the expense of a few chicks which were killed out to death in a fervent pork and beans atmosphere. The idea of both raising and cooking chickens in incubators is depressing to the manufacturers of fireless cookers.

President Taft has signed orders which provide for the further withdrawal of coal lands from entry and appropriation for mining purposes. The aggregate of such withdrawals now reaches over 7,500,000 acres. This means that the enormous area in question is to be preserved by the government for disposition in the future and that it is not to fall into the hands of grasping monopolists, says Times. "Coal lands may be open to agricultural entry, but the rich deposits underneath are to remain public property, subject to such arrangement as may be made in the general interest."

The raining of the gumbot Casline which as a result lies on the beach at Provincetown, Mass., full of water, was due to a misadventure in minor warfare similar to that which caused the sinking of the French submarine Pluviose and the drowning of her entire crew. But in the case of the Casline, which struck the Casline, the mistake was made in the line of duty, whereas the loss of the Pluviose was due to a "fool trick" on the part of her commander, who miscalculated when attempting to dive under a passenger steamer merely for spectacular effect.

The first sham battle in the air is reported from Vincennes, France, where balloons carried guns to the height of 225 feet and discharged them. One of the contending balloons was compelled to retreat, and both balloons happily outlived the sham battle, which was remarkable chiefly for this latter demerit.

RAINS BRING RELIEF

HEAVY FALL IN FIRE-SWEEP ZONE AIDS TENSE SITUATION.

TWENTY BODIES ARE FOUND

Officially Declared 54 Persons Lost Lives in Cour d'Alene District—Four Negro Soldiers Missing—Hundred Dead Around Wallace.

Avary, Idaho. The bodies of 20 forest service men who died fighting the fire near here were recovered Wednesday and brought to this city. Government agents declare there is little hope for any of the missing. Four negro soldiers of Company G, Twenty-fifth United States Infantry, are among the missing and are believed to have been killed.

Two Japanese employed in railroad work, who had been fighting the fire, emerged from the woods. They were severely burned and report that ten of their fellow laborers had fallen before the flames and were dead.

Spokane, Wash. Rain, turning to snow in the high mountains Wednesday brought relief to a large part of Idaho. Mountains and Washington districts that have been devastated by forest fires. The storm, according to reports from Missoula, has extended over an area of 100 square miles, taking in the Cour d'Alene district.

It is now officially declared that 54 persons, and no more, have been killed. There is said to be no war against the reports of loss of human life. The list of men on the list by government foresters employed in Idaho have reported to the supervisor or are known to be safe.

Wallace, Idaho. Reports here Wednesday show a death list of 100, with 200 men missing, as the result of the forest fires. While the chief of Wardner, Kootenai, Burke and Murray are threatened with disaster similar to the one which Wallace has suffered, the danger here is over.

A prospector who reached Wallace brought word to Forest Supervisor Wells that Ranger H. F. Kottke, who with a crew of 200 men had been missing in the St. Joe country since Friday, has reported safe at Missoula with a few of his men.

Helena, Mont. Reports received here from every fire district in Montana indicate that the situation is by long odds the worst in the history of the state. Despite the large number of troops, civilians and railroad employees that have been put into the field, the flames are absolute masters of the situation, and there is only one salvation general rule, but for which there is no prospect.

Hurt, Mont. Six hundred fire fighters who left Thursday, Idaho, Wednesday are reported lost, and Forest Superintendent Buckhorn of the cabinet reserve, who is at Thompson, fears all may have perished. The wind is blowing furiously toward Thompson and it is feared the little town, which is crowded with refugees, will be swept by fire.

The first clearing news from the great forest fire zone came Tuesday afternoon in the shape of a report that heavy rain was falling at Oatbank on the eastern edge of the great Placidus country. Should this rain come general in the western and northwestern part of the state the fire will be conquered and not until then, according to those who have visited the scene.

Washington—Already the forest fire raging in the Missoula, Mont., and northern Idaho districts have consumed timber valued at more than $25,000,000. This, according to an official of the forest bureau Monday, is a conservative estimate.

Spokane, Wash.—In the Cour d'Alene district of Idaho more than fifty persons are known to be dead, and nearly 100 are missing as a result of the forest fires.

All along the Great Northern and Northern Pacific tracks between Spokane and Helena numerous fires are known to be raging furiously, but definite reports cannot be secured.

The seriously injured, mostly fire-fighters, will number, according to the statement made Monday by W. I. Wells, forest superintendent of the Cour d'Alene, more than 200. Many of them have been stricken blind and others have broken limbs.

TAFT PROMISES REVISION

ISSUES A LETTER FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN BOOK.

Executive to Recommend to Congress That Individual Schedules Be Taken Up Separately.

Heverly, Mass.—In the letter he has written for the Republican congressional campaign book, President Taft advocates revision of the tariff by separate schedule.

The president dwells at length upon the work of the tariff board which has been investigating the cost of living at home and abroad. Summing up what he hopes from this board, the president says that whenever it reports to him facts which in his judgment warrant a revision of any particular schedule, he will recommend such revision in a message to congress.

If it is objected that this method of tariff revision is open to the possibility that the attempted revision of one schedule will bring down a flood of amendments which will, in effect, open up the entire tariff law, the president has a reply. He will recommend the adoption of a rule in both houses of congress providing that only the specific schedule that is amended shall be reopened and that all amendments not germane to that schedule shall be regarded as out of order.

In taking this stand in favor of revising the tariff, a schedule at a time, the president is going more than half way to meet the progressives, who have charged that the scheme of revision followed at the special session of congress makes a fair and impartial revision of the tariff impossible and paves the way for deals and deals with the interests of "big business" are fostered and protected. The move is another step toward harmonizing the party.

CRUISER ASHORE; 18 DEAD

British Warship Bedford Goes on Rocks Off the Korean Coast—Probably Total Loss.

London.—Eighteen lives were lost when the British cruiser Bedford ran ashore on the rocks of Quelpart Island, Korea, according to a report received here Monday by the admiralty. The men were members of the engine room force.

The accident occurred during full speed trials of the vessel and the cruiser was evidently badly damaged, since the engine room was officially reported to have been due to the "burst of water." The wreck is about two miles to the west of Newrow Island, which is off the southwestern point of Quelpart Island. Many sunken rocks are charted in this vicinity, and navigation in the passage between Barlow and Giffard Island, its neighbor, is not recommended for this reason.

The vessel lies in such a desperate position that there is practically no possibility of saving her. The hull is full of water up to the engine room bulkhead, the water pouring in through gushing holes punched by the sunken rocks, and the officers and crew have been taken off. The sister warships, the Minotaur and Monmouth of the British squadron, which anchored near the wreck to render assistance, were obliged to put to sea owing to the heavy weather which prevails.

CONVICTS AT OLEO INQUIRY

Moonshiners Are Brought From Prison to Tell of Alleged Gigantic Conspiracy.

Chicago.—Investigation of charges of conspiracy to defraud the government made against manufacturers of buttermilk may begin before next Monday. William Bradley, a Samuel Driesbach, convicted oleo moonshiners who are now serving terms in federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and three other prisoners who were convicted in Milwaukee, Wis., for the same offense, were secretly brought to Chicago Wednesday in charge of a federal official. Their arrival at this time was unexpected.

New leads of investigation will, in all probability, be pursued by the judicial body in the examination of these witnesses, as the government is already in possession of signed confessions from Driesbach and Bradley, according to an official of the forest bureau Monday, is a conservative estimate.

Spokane, Wash.—In the Cour d'Alene district of Idaho more than fifty persons are known to be dead, and nearly 100 are missing as a result of the forest fires.

All along the Great Northern and Northern Pacific tracks between Spokane and Helena numerous fires are known to be raging furiously, but definite reports cannot be secured.

The seriously injured, mostly fire-fighters, will number, according to the statement made Monday by W. I. Wells, forest superintendent of the Cour d'Alene, more than 200. Many of them have been stricken blind and others have broken limbs.

Rewards Captor of Autocrat. New York.—John James, the chauffeur who raced after Edward T. H. Knickerbocker's automobile, after it had killed Miss Grace Lough, will receive a reward of $1,000 from Walter B. Lough, the father of the girl.

Arrest Englishman as Spy. Emden, Germany.—A second Englishman, in addition to the one captured Monday at Borkum, was arrested at Borkum Tuesday on suspicion that he also is a spy. He offered violent resistance to arrest.

Fleet is Home From Europe. Norfolk, Va.—The naval practice squadron, composed of the battleships Iowa, Indiana and Massachusetts, passed in the Virginia capes Monday from an allsummer practice cruise in European waters, with naval mailmen aboard.

Divorce Cause Double Tragedy. Milwaukee.—Henry Wagner of Green Bay Monday killed his wife and fatally shot himself as a result of the woman's determination to secure a divorce from him.

Plot to Destroy Steamship. New York.—The discovery a few hours before the time set for the sailing of the Russian liner Lituanian Saturday of a can of giant powder in the coal that was being loaded into the ship's bunkers is believed to have forestalled a scheme for the destruction of the vessel at sea.

The Lituanian carries more than 100 passengers and a large cargo. The can containing one and one-half pounds of giant powder had been almost scooped up by the great shovel when a workman saw it.

Watchmakers' Union is Latest. New York.—The newest labor organization to gain a foothold in New York is the Watchmakers' union. Up to a short time ago there were no watchmen made in this city, repairing only being done.

Freights Collide; Three Killed. Hagerstown, Md.—Three men were killed and six injured in a head-on freight train collision on the Western Maryland railroad near Edgemont late Monday night.

WISCONSIN LEAD AND ZINC MINES

Sales for Week Are in Excess of Production.

STATE FIELD MAKING RECORD

Better Conditions Made Themselves Manifest in the Zinc Mining Field at Mineral Point.

Madison.—Better conditions made themselves manifest in the zinc mining field at Mineral Point for the week, the sales of both zinc and lead ore being far in excess of the production, the surplus being materially reduced. This condition prevailed in the Missouri region also, where about the same time, the zinc and lead production is not as great as that of a few months ago.

Buyers were in the field early making bids on a $100 bushels for 60 per

Chas. Lundberg is busy with the masons and finishing his new home.

NEKOOSA.

(From the Times.)

The Congregational Sunday school picnic was held on the grounds opposite the Catholic church near the river last Friday. A bonfire and fine dinner was served to everybody there at noon. In the afternoon the races were carried out, and everybody present was nearly as possible. Many of the children were made happy with little blue and red ribbon bangles as prizes to the winners of the different races.

Frank Nobles, whose home is in the town of Nekoosa, was seriously injured in a runaway accident while driving from Babcock last Thursday evening and as a result will be laid up a long time, the muscles and ligaments being badly torn and strained in an attempt to control his team which became frightened by the evening passenger train.

Louis King received the sad news by telegram last Monday morning that his mother had passed away at her home in Montreal, Canada, last Saturday night. Mr. King visited his mother some time ago, being called there on account of her feeble health.

Arthur Shining, twelve year old son of R. O. Shining of Arpin, died of diphtheria, at his home last Tuesday evening. The boy had just about recovered from the mumps when he was taken ill with diphtheria.

PITTSVILLE.

(From the Record.)

Work was commenced on the new bank building of this week when Surveyor Severus platted out the lot and workmen from Marshfield who have the contract for erecting the same came down with the plans to confer with the local committee on building. The building will be of solid brick, one story high and on somewhat the same front plan as the harness shop of Mr. Ludvig.

C. J. Brown arrived in the city Monday morning and opened up the L. Ward hotel preparatory to cleaning it out and getting it into shape for occupancy as a hotel. His family arrived last night and the goods yesterday morning. He has a string of horses and will do livery business. The hotel will be ready for occupancy in about a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Olack drove down last week on business. Mr. Olack states that there has been no rain there and that the hay marsh was burning and had been burned for a number of months.

The post was burned for two feet on the surface and that crops of all kinds were eaten up by fire.

John Maxwell, east of the city, will shortly leave for Baltimore to be employed the coming winter in the logging business. One would naturally suppose that the logging business in and about Baltimore had become about extinct. Del Murray may accompany him.

The few rains of the past week and last have started the pickle industry into now life and the crew at the salting station has had to be increased in order to care for the intake.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in this epidemic of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced to liquid form, if needed, it is pleasant to take. Sold by all dealers.

THE MAN FOR SENATOR.

(Wisconsin needs a man in the United States senate who can get results.—Samuel A. Cook, has shown by his past record that he can do this. He has secured results as farm boy, merchant, manufacturer, employer and owner and operator of a model dairy farm and he can secure results that count as senator. It was Mr. Cook, who, when a representative in congress secured the passage of the filled cheese bill. At the time when a cheese made of skimmed milk with cheap fats and oils added, was selling as full cream cheese and bringing a distrust of the genuine trade that was causing its ruin. Mr. Cook introduced in congress, and secured the passage of a law that forced the makers of the spurious cheese to brand it for exactly what it was. This stopped the sale of the cheap imitation, no one would buy it, and was a great stimulus to the genuine cheese business and to all the dairy industry.

Mr. Cook also worked for pure seed and pure food and since leaving congress as a member and patron of the National Dairyman and Wisconsin Buttermakers and the Wisconsin Cheese-makers' associations has done much to advance the dairy interests.

As an employer Mr. Cook has lived up to his advanced ideas in the treatment of his men. In all his long business career he has never had trouble with his men so far as the regard his fair treatment and generosity wins for him. In his mill he operates under a profit sharing plan whereby the men receive as high as ten per cent of their annual wages in additional profits, and he provides a promotion system that gives every man his chance to reach the top.

A man who does these things may be depended upon to secure results for his state and its farmers and workmen when in the United States senate and the farmers and wage earners will not forget it when they vote at the primary election, Sept. 6, 1910.—Advertisement.

Dairy Products as Food.

The products of the dairy are perhaps the most useful articles included in the human diet. A meal made up of dishes into which no product of the dairy comes enters would not be such as to inspire "the turnpike road to people's hearts, I find lies through their mouths, or I mistake mankind." Take away the butter for the bread, the cream for the coffee and the porridge, the shortening in the crust and the biscuits, the milk in the gravy and in the puddings, the cream for the dessert and the various kinds of cheese which please and satisfy, then take away the cup of milk for the little one and the meal that would be left would be neither tempting or nutritious.

The health of our people depends so much on an adequate supply of pure dairy products that even a scarcity is always attended by suffering and death.

Butter is sometimes referred to as a luxury. This is a mistake. Butter is not a luxury but one of the necessities of life, and its composition is such that nothing can take its place and perform the same functions. It is nature's product compounded in the maternal organism and the process is in accordance with nature's law, a law which man can imitate but cannot understand. Man can manufacture from various fats and oils a substitute for butter but it cannot take the place of nature's product because man cannot understand the needs of the human body as nature understands them.

The animal body is developed best when nourished by foods which have been little manipulated by man and machinery. Dairy products are, as a rule, consumed nearly as nature produced them. They are particularly rich with milk upon which the growing body must depend. In the case of butter only a small percentage of other products are added to the fat extracted from the milk. Man only manipulates it in order to put it in convenient form for use. It can still be termed a product of nature designed as only nature can design for use as food by the human body.

One View of the West

Stevens Point Journal.—L. N. Anson, formerly of this city, just returned to his home in Merrill after spending two months in Idaho, Oregon and Washington, and is quoted by the Merrill Herald as not being favorably impressed with the west. He is also quoted as saying, "It should be remembered that Mr. Anson, although raised on a farm, is now a speculator in timber on a large scale and his view point is naturally different from that of the average settler who goes out there to develop a farm. Mr. Anson is quoted as saying:—

"In my opinion the man who owns a small farm in northern Wisconsin, will make a greater mistake if he sells out and goes west in the hope of improving his condition. There is a great activity just now in the fruit business but land for this purpose is selling in five and ten acre tracts at from $300 to $500 per acre. The annual charge for water is generally $5 per acre."

Mr. Anson also stated that while the wonderful natural resources of these western states would eventually lead to a great development, it is also true that the big corporations are dominant there to an unusual degree. Big syndicates have already grabbed up or are rapidly acquiring the timber and water rights to such an extent that the small holder is virtually at their mercy.

Mr. Anson states that he believes from what he has heard and seen that the irrigated lands also have their drawbacks which are serious, especially to an easterner. The top soil of these lands is very thin, and it is very dry, when dry, and it is dry most of the time, is blown about in clouds by the prevailing winds, which is both disagreeable and unhealthy. Just at present, the business conditions are not favorable and the country is overrun with unemployed men.

In other words, Mr. Anson is still of the opinion that Wisconsin offers the average citizen better all around advantages than pioneering in the undeveloped west.

The Man for Senator.

—Wisconsin needs a man in the United States senate who can get results.—Samuel A. Cook, has shown by his past record that he can do this. He has secured results as farm boy, merchant, manufacturer, employer and owner and operator of a model dairy farm and he can secure results that count as senator. It was Mr. Cook, who, when a representative in congress secured the passage of the filled cheese bill. At the time when a cheese made of skimmed milk with cheap fats and oils added, was selling as full cream cheese and bringing a distrust of the genuine trade that was causing its ruin. Mr. Cook introduced in congress, and secured the passage of a law that forced the makers of the spurious cheese to brand it for exactly what it was. This stopped the sale of the cheap imitation, no one would buy it, and was a great stimulus to the genuine cheese business and to all the dairy industry.

Mr. Cook also worked for pure seed and pure food and since leaving congress as a member and patron of the National Dairyman and Wisconsin Buttermakers and the Wisconsin Cheese-makers' associations has done much to advance the dairy interests.

As an employer Mr. Cook has lived up to his advanced ideas in the treatment of his men. In all his long business career he has never had trouble with his men so far as the regard his fair treatment and generosity wins for him. In his mill he operates under a profit sharing plan whereby the men receive as high as ten per cent of their annual wages in additional profits, and he provides a promotion system that gives every man his chance to reach the top.

A man who does these things may be depended upon to secure results for his state and its farmers and workmen when in the United States senate and the farmers and wage earners will not forget it when they vote at the primary election, Sept. 6, 1910.—Advertisement.

Dairy Products as Food.

The products of the dairy are perhaps the most useful articles included in the human diet. A meal made up of dishes into which no product of the dairy comes enters would not be such as to inspire "the turnpike road to people's hearts, I find lies through their mouths, or I mistake mankind." Take away the butter for the bread, the cream for the coffee and the porridge, the shortening in the crust and the biscuits, the milk in the gravy and in the puddings, the cream for the dessert and the various kinds of cheese which please and satisfy, then take away the cup of milk for the little one and the meal that would be left would be neither tempting or nutritious.

The health of our people depends so much on an adequate supply of pure dairy products that even a scarcity is always attended by suffering and death.

Butter is sometimes referred to as a luxury. This is a mistake. Butter is not a luxury but one of the necessities of life, and its composition is such that nothing can take its place and perform the same functions. It is nature's product compounded in the maternal organism and the process is in accordance with nature's law, a law which man can imitate but cannot understand. Man can manufacture from various fats and oils a substitute for butter but it cannot take the place of nature's product because man cannot understand the needs of the human body as nature understands them.

The animal body is developed best when nourished by foods which have been little manipulated by man and machinery. Dairy products are, as a rule, consumed nearly as nature produced them. They are particularly rich with milk upon which the growing body must depend. In the case of butter only a small percentage of other products are added to the fat extracted from the milk. Man only manipulates it in order to put it in convenient form for use. It can still be termed a product of nature designed as only nature can design for use as food by the human body.

Stevens Point Journal.—L. N. Anson, formerly of this city, just returned to his home in Merrill after spending two months in Idaho, Oregon and Washington, and is quoted by the Merrill Herald as not being favorably impressed with the west. He is also quoted as saying, "It should be remembered that Mr. Anson, although raised on a farm, is now a speculator in timber on a large scale and his view point is naturally different from that of the average settler who goes out there to develop a farm. Mr. Anson is quoted as saying:—

"In my opinion the man who owns a small farm in northern Wisconsin, will make a greater mistake if he sells out and goes west in the hope of improving his condition. There is a great activity just now in the fruit business but land for this purpose is selling in five and ten acre tracts at from $300 to $500 per acre. The annual charge for water is generally $5 per acre."

Mr. Anson also stated that while the wonderful natural resources of these western states would eventually lead to a great development, it is also true that the big corporations are dominant there to an unusual degree. Big syndicates have already grabbed up or are rapidly acquiring the timber and water rights to such an extent that the small holder is virtually at their mercy.

Mr. Anson states that he believes from what he has heard and seen that the irrigated lands also have their drawbacks which are serious, especially to an easterner. The top soil of these lands is very thin, and it is very dry, when dry, and it is dry most of the time, is blown about in clouds by the prevailing winds, which is both disagreeable and unhealthy. Just at present, the business conditions are not favorable and the country is overrun with unemployed men.

In other words, Mr. Anson is still of the opinion that Wisconsin offers the average citizen better all around advantages than pioneering in the undeveloped west.

The professional politician, Grafters and special interests have no use for Mr. Weiss. Why? Daily Bulletin.

Mr. Weiss has been in congress eight years and as a candidate for United States Senator stands on his record.

CHAS. H. WEISSE CANDIDATE FOR U. S. SENATOR

His Record as the Fighting Congressman from Wisconsin Has Won Credit all Over the Country---His Attacks Made on the Aldrich-Payne Tariff Bill Praised by Press of Country---The Friend of the Soldier---An Opponent of Cannonism and the Old Machine---The Announcement.

Hon. Charles H. Weiss of Sheboygan Falls, member of congress from the sixth district, and who is just closing his fourth term, has announced to the Democrats of Wisconsin that he will be a candidate for United States Senator before the September primaries. In making this announcement Mr. Weiss does so at the request of Democrats who are anxious to see a spirited contest thereby assuring a large vote at the primaries and materially strengthening the party in the state.

A friendly combat, yet spirited, always tends to create interest and so it will be in this campaign.

CONTEST IN SIXTH.

After deciding to be a candidate for congress to succeed himself, more than 5,000 voters in his district appealed to him by petitions to stand as a candidate. At the same time M. K. Reilly of Fond du Lac announced that he would withdraw from the field if Mr. Weiss desired to honor the wishes of the people and a similar statement came from M. E. Burke of Dodge County. The Ozaukee county candidate, Harry Dolens, accepted the tender by the convention, that of incumbent governor, thus being out of the race. E. W. Clark, of Fond du Lac has repeatedly expressed himself along the same lines. This would have left the field practically clear for Mr. Weiss but he had given his word that he would not be a candidate and at no time has he been fit to change the decision made previous to the receipt of the 5,000 signatures. A contest is assured in this district which will bring out a large vote, but in the state at large the conditions are different. Until Mr. Weiss announced that he would be a candidate for United States Senator not a contest was assured which would guarantee to Democracy a heavy vote throughout the state of Wisconsin.

A campaign of this nature, extending to all portions of the state, means a great deal to a man in business for he must sacrifice in order to enter the field. Believing that the Democratic party is the one closest to the people, and which will eventually grant them relief from the burdens of a protective tariff, if relief is to come at all, he enters this campaign to encourage, to wage a fight. Those who have followed the career of Congressman Weiss realize that he is a good campaigner, one of the best in the state, and all candidates receiving his support—and none but the deserving do—profit by his energy and ability in that line. He has been and is, a constant surprise to everyone who has followed his career, and it has been a pleasing and gratifying surprise to his supporters. No one can deny his power, not only as a politician but as a statesman, and he is infinitely more of a statesman than a politician, the latter to which he aspires less to, than the former.

RECORD OF VOTES.

To the people of Wisconsin, those residing outside this district, a brief statement as to the vote received by Mr. Weiss in his congressional campaigns will be of interest. In 1902 he received 17,991 votes, in 1904 20,665 votes a majority of 2,978. He was the only democratic congressman elected in the Northwest and when Theodore Roosevelt carried the district by 4,797. In 1906 Mr. Weiss received 19,446 carrying the district by 8,934 and in 1908 his vote was 23,317 sweeping the district by 7,133. President Taft in the same campaign carried the district by 800. Mr. Weiss carried every county in the district and two of the counties did not elect a democrat on their county ticket. This only goes to show that not only is he a good campaigner but a vote getter. His record in congress is one that entitles him to the support of the masses, and the increase in his majorities, year after year, is the best argument that can be advanced along this line.

WORK ON PLATFORM.

Mr. Weiss was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions in Kansas City, St. Louis and Denver and as a member of the platform committee rendered work which won for him credit not alone from his own party papers, but the Chicago Tribune, a staunch Republican paper, had this to say of him in their issue of July 10th, 1908:

"In framing the platform of the Democratic party Charles H. Weiss of Sheboygan Falls, Wis., exercised a notable influence. Mr. Weiss was neither a radical nor a conservative, but endeavored to produce a platform upon which the whole Democratic party could go before the people."

Mr. Weiss is not a lawyer, but a sound business man who has had experience as a member of Congress. On the resolutions committee were more than forty lawyers who got into frequent snarls by their various interpretations of phrases and sentences of planks reported by the subcommittees of the subcommittees.

"When the debate was at its hottest this Wisconsin man would rise and make a practical suggestion which would develop to the solution upon which all could agree. The planks to which Mr. Weiss devoted the most attention were those relating to the business affairs of the country, the trusts, the tariff and railroads."

"When Mr. Weiss came to Denver he was sought out by delegates who regarded his judgment as accurate and who wanted to ascertain how far he was willing to go upon the various matters which it was proposed to insert in the platform. He was elected unanimously by the Wisconsin delegation as its representative upon the resolutions committee, a choice which events demonstrated was the wisest thing it could have done."

"Mr. Weiss frankly told the other members of the committee that his knowledge of law was limited, but by his tact and sound views he quickly made friends, and they listened to his advice with close attention."

SELF MADE MAN.

Mr. Weiss is a native of Sheboygan county, and a successful business man, operating a tannery, (not in the trust) and employing a large working force. Never in the history of his business career has Mr. Weiss experienced labor troubles and when he has been told to his credit that the wheels had been kept going, a day never missed and the men given their full pay in cash. This is the business record of Mr. Weiss and his public record is just as good, a champion of the people, and always on the square and for a "square deal" to the masses. His father came to this country from Germany and founded the business in 1868, which has grown with rapid strides. The present congressman received his early schooling in the village of Sheboygan Falls and later attended a private Lutheran school going into his father's office when but fifteen years of age to take charge of the books. When he took over the business at his father's death he was familiar with every branch. The men in his employ believe in him and a visit to Sheboygan Falls will convince any person that Mr. Weiss is a friend of the laborer. His success in the tannery business has been due to the fact that he gives each department his personal attention, the same is true in his public life. He is on the ground doing active work, looking after the welfare of those in his district, and for that matter in the nation. His stand on the tariff, railroad and other important questions are too well known for argument. He has opposed every tariff measure introduced in congress during the period he has been there, and not alone did he vote against the present tariff law, but entered a vigorous protest in a debate against the Aldrich-Payne tariff bill that stands as one of the best and ablest delivered against the unjust law. His speeches delivered on the post office department and against the unwise expenditures and extravagance of the administration were considered by Champ Clark, the minority leader, as among the best delivered in congress. Mr. Weiss has won his way into the hearts of the Old Soldiers by his championing of their cause, and as a member of the pension committee took an active part and was largely instrumental in securing the passage of the two laws which have been the means of increasing their pensions. He has given personal attention to every request from needy and deserving soldiers and as a result not a one has failed of passage under the special act. He has been ready and willing at all times to assist the soldiers in getting their pensions and claims adjusted by the department, and secured the passage of a bill to reimburse the Second Regiment band for instruments damaged during the Spanish-American war. This claim which had been pigeonholed by a former member, was resurrected by Mr. Weiss and favorable action on the claim secured, and the boys received their money. It can be said to the credit of Mr. Weiss that he has given his personal attention to all matters pertaining to the district and not a single matter of importance has been overlooked or gone by default. His record best shows this.

Not like many, who forget that they are public servants after election, Mr. Weiss has constantly had in mind the welfare of the people of his district. Not a single letter or request made has been ignored or pigeonholed. On the contrary he has given every request his personal attention, and prompt answers have followed. Summed up briefly he is as has been said many times "the right kind of a man in public life." Well versed in business affairs he has aimed during his public career to bring about a change or at least to advocate one, that would mean a business administration for the masses, and assure a government operated along the same lines as utilized in the successful business concerns of the country. His ability in meeting and debating questions of vital importance to the masses is shown in the fact that the old timers in congress refused to yield to him, on the floor of the house realizing that he is an opponent that could best them in argument. He is, and always has been, opposed to Cannonism under any guise, and no member has been more vigorous in an endeavor to dethrone Cannonism. Democratic victory will unseat Speaker Cannon, nothing else will. That is Mr. Weiss's position and it is the position that will be taken by every person who wants to see Cannonism killed. The system that keeps Cannon and men of that type in power must be destroyed, and a political death must be meted out and now is the time. The Republican party to-day encourages support from the System, because the System is the Republican Party. Let the Democrats of Wisconsin do their portion in aiding the great fight now in progress all over the country and which will assure representative government.

A REAL DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE

Congressman Charles H. Weiss declines re-nomination in the Sixth District and has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator at the coming primaries. This is cheerful and welcome news and assures to the democratic voters and independents a real live candidate with a record of achievement and one who can be supported with the conviction that all of his proven ability will be devoted to practical progressive legislation in the interest of all the people, and not to playing politics for the attainment of personal selfish ends. A native of Wisconsin, a successful business man and a large employer who has gained the loyalty and confidence of his employees, a hard working member of congress during four terms, achieving high standing among the members of his party and the respect of the opposition because of his sterling integrity and clear thinking and right acting, Charles H. Weiss is just the candidate the party now requires for an aggressive and successful campaign. — Wausau Pilot.

The grafters, political office seekers, railroad and corporation attorneys and those who stand for special privileges at the expense of the masses are opposed to Mr. Weiss continuing in public life. Why? — Fond du Lac Bulletin.

PRESS OF STATE GIVES MR. WEISSE GREAT CREDIT

Leading Papers Both Democratic and Republican Acknowledge His Ability---Has Always Been Found Fighting in Behalf of the Masses---His Popularity Extends Beyond the Borders of the Badger State.

APPLETON CRESCENT.

Congressman C. H. Weiss of Sheboygan announces to the democrats that he will be a candidate for United States senator before the September Primaries. Mr. Weiss will have very strong support in this county and district, as he is very deservedly popular among the democrats.

WEST BEND PILOT.

Mr. Weiss is a candidate around whom not only Democrats can rally, but also those who believe in the principle of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none." As a congressman, by his impartiality, his promptness and solicitude in their behalf, he has won the esteem and admiration of his constituents. As an employer, by his kindness, his consideration and his leniency, he has won a place in the hearts of his employees. As a man among men, by his honesty, his generosity, his straightforwardness and fidelity to his friends, he has endeared himself to all with whom he has come in contact in every walk of life.

FOND DU LAC REPORTER.

No man whether a candidate or an official, has labored harder and with greater conscientiousness united with unusual ability, for the advancement of his party and at the same time for the welfare of the people generally, than has Congressman Charles H. Weiss of the Sixth district. This was as true of his first candidacy when he was certain of defeat, as it has been since. In him has been found a representative of the democracy and of the people. As a correspondent describes him "He is a man of integrity; of unlimited benevolence; of truth and justice; of honesty once but also of firmness for the right. In short, he is a man of and for the people."

TWO RIVERS CHRONICLE.

Charles H. Weiss, the only democrat Wisconsin has in congress, is a great credit to the state. He is a plain, practical man and makes no pretensions. But he accomplishes just as much as any of his slick-tongued colleagues.

JUNEAU TELEPHONE.

The Hon. Charles H. Weiss, has done more in the interests of his constituents than the majority of his colleagues, many of whom have held their positions years before he entered politics. His ability during his time as a member has compelled the recognition and admiration of his fellow members. His constant industry and watchfulness of every piece of proposed legislation has earned for him the highest degree of appreciation.

SHEBOYGAN TELEGRAM.

Congressman Weiss who has just announced himself as a candidate for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket has acquired fame through his untiring efforts to serve the people. This is best attested by the esteem in which he is held by the old soldiers, for whom he has always been alert.

Then again he has acquired fame through his arguments against the present tariff law which tends to place a burden upon the consumer in order that the trusts may declare greater dividends and increase their holdings. While he has increased his popularity by this kind of a stand he has also made enemies of a few office holders and politicians.

In declaring that the men in the railway mail service were inadequately paid for their services and advocating a reduction in the salaries of postmasters, criticism has been heard in some quarters but this was to be expected. Mr. Weiss took the position that the men who performed the real work were the ones entitled to the greatest consideration. It is this kind of a stand that has made him popular. Men in public life, unless they make good, find when each election comes around, a falling off of votes, a decline in their popularity. The reverse shows that the people have confidence, that they want to support a man who is a servant for the masses. In 1902 Mr. Weiss received 17,991 votes in this district. Two years later his vote was 20,665, his majority being 2,978. That same year Theodore Roosevelt carried the district by 4,797. In 1906 Mr. Weiss carried the district by 8,934 and in 1908 he received 23,317, sweeping the district by 7,133. President Taft at that time carried the district by 800.

The people of the district elected him because he was waging a battle at Washington in their behalf. Mr. Weiss has never accepted a contribution from any corporation or individual. He has spent his own money and was free to act for his constituents when he reached Washington.

MILWAUKEE NEWS, OCT. 10, 1908

In all his career as congressman Mr. Weiss has never been absent from a committee meeting, and it will be recalled that it was Mr. Weiss, single handed, who forced through the measure which gives to all widows of soldiers a pension of $12 a month. Mr. Weiss had the clause inserted which made it apply to all widows, whether married before the end of the war or afterwards. That was justice to a large number of dependent women; and throughout the whole public career of Mr. Weiss that same spirit of consideration for the weak has been manifest.

STRONG WITH THE PEOPLE.

Congressman Weiss who is a candidate before the September Primaries for the office of United States Senator is serving his fourth term in congress and a careful study of his record will encourage every Democrat to vote for him.

The popularity of Mr. Weiss in his district is testified to by the following resolutions adopted in Washington county at their recent convention:

Whereas, the Hon. Charles H. Weiss, the present Democratic representative in congress of the Sixth District of Wisconsin, has proven himself a constructive legislator, a great power, and an able and fearless champion of the rights of the people of the principles of the Democratic party, and an indefatigable worker for the interests of his constituents. Now therefore,

Be it Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that Hon. Charles H. Weiss stand as a candidate for re-nomination as congressman from this district at the coming primary election."

Admiring friends, those who believe in the principles for which Congressman Weiss has contended while in public life, have voiced their disapproval of his retiring at this time and by more than 6,000 signatures have requested that he stand for re-nomination.

The petitions which were circulated all within a week, have been laid before Mr. Weiss, and every argument possible made to have him stand as a candidate in the Sixth congressional district. In Washington county, not alone the democrats, but many republicans insist that he allow his name to be used and point out that his record as a champion of the plain people is the best argument that can be advanced for his continuation in public life. So it is from every county in the district.

This only goes to show, and prove what this paper has always contended, that a man who is a true servant of the people, grows stronger with years of service and

CAMPAIGN LIES NAILED

When Congressman Weiss was out for a re-election in the last campaign his opponents started the cry that he had been absent from congress when matters of grave importance were up for consideration but these stories were proven false and every paper publishing the story made a retraction and made haste to do so. The retraction in the Free Press was similar to that in the Sentinel and other papers in the state and was as follows:

"There is no record kept in the house of representatives from which it may be ascertained the number of days a congressman attends during the session of congress, nor the number of times a member votes on questions passed upon by the house, nor do the records as a rule show in case a member is paired with an opposing member, whether or not he voted on the question in case the roll is called but a member paired never loses his vote on any question passed upon by the house whether the vote is taken upon a roll call or otherwise.

The circular does also do Mr. Weiss an injustice in saying that "it appears that Mr. Weiss's first vote in the second session of the fifty-ninth congress was cast on Feb. 18, 1907, two weeks before final adjournment." Mr. Weiss may have voted many times prior to the date on questions passed upon by the house and in fact did a great many times vote on questions passed upon by the house during that session prior to that time. It also is made to appear from the statement published that Mr. Weiss attended the sixtieth congress only about eight days, while in truth and fact, as we are credibly informed, he was in attendance at the session of the sixtieth congress during the first four months thereof and during which time there were in fact only twelve roll calls." — Milwaukee Free Press.

In every campaign in which Mr. Weiss has taken part the powerful interests, those anxious to see him in private life, have turned their guns in his direction but the result has always been the same, a return to office by increased majorities. In this campaign the same cries will no doubt be raised but they will come from the same source, those who think more of serving the interests rather than the masses. Mr. Weiss stands on his record. He has fought the interests, he has fought Cannonism tooth and nail and he will keep on fighting Cannonism just so long as he is in public life.

Mr. Weiss will be greatly disappointed if the same campaign lies are not circulated at this time. It has been a plan so long in vogue that Congressman Weiss feels it unnecessary to longer put up a defense. The masses understand the purpose and why he is made the target for this kind of criticism. It comes from those who want to see Republican victories achieved and to that end will circulate any kind of a campaign lie and even go into the primaries and vote the republican ticket.

Hon. Chas. H. Weiss of Sheboygan Falls has announced his candidacy for United States Senator. He is the kind of a man who will truly represent the people and will not allow himself to be influenced by greedy corporations. He made a splendid record in Congress and is recognized as a staunch defender of democratic principles and an advocate of equity and justice. Even though a candidate was chosen at the democratic state convention many leading democrats urged upon Weiss to become a candidate and the result will be that the campaign will be more spirited and bring out a larger democratic vote. — Two Rivers Chronicle.

SOLDIERS PROUD OF MR. WEISSE

HIS PENSION WORK.

The Chilton Times, a publication that is thoroughly acquainted with the good work done by Mr. Weiss had this to say at the time Congressman Weiss secured a pension for Henry Erdman of that city:

"The Times believes in giving credit to whom credit is due and to that end calls the attention of its readers, in general and veterans of the civil war, in particular, to the excellent work done during this session of congress by Hon. Chas. H. Weiss, of the sixth district of Wisconsin, in the interest of the fast decreasing remnant who endangered their lives and who still suffer from the effects of the war for the preservation of the union. A case of special interest to those in this vicinity and one which shows the sincere friendship of Congressman Weiss for disabled and deserving veterans is that of Henry Erdman, of this city, a member of the 28th Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry. Mr. Erdman enlisted at Milwaukee in August 1862 and served three years as corporal and sergeant, being wounded in the battle of Bentonville. Some twenty odd years ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis and since that time he has been unable to do work of any kind. For years he received a trifling pension of twelve dollars a month.

He has lived here all these years and has tried repeatedly to have this small sum increased. Previous to each election, regularly, he has heard the republican congressman of this, the eighth district spout eloquently about "old glory" and the nation's gratitude to the "boys in blue" who defended and preserved it; but it remained for Congressman Weiss of our neighboring district to show this eloquently expressed gratitude in a material way and he did so with dispatch and with a lack of éclat that is commendable. When his attention was called to Mr. Erdman's condition in February last he promptly replied: "It is a just case. Send down to Washington the necessary proof and I will take up the matter at once." In March the proofs were sent in and in April the bill which Mr. Weiss introduced was passed, granting Mr. Erdman the well earned and long deferred pension of $24.00 per month dating from May 5th 1908.

Congressman Weiss's friendship for the "old soldier" is not merely pose and inaction. The Times ventures to say that he has secured more special pensions for deserving veterans, who were unable through the red tape of the department to furnish the required evidence, than all the other congressmen in the state combined; and this is not an unwarranted statement. Since Mr. Erdman's case has come to our notice we took the trouble to look up some of the bills passed at this congress through the efforts of Mr. Weiss and found a goodly number, indeed, a list of which we publish below. While speaking of Mr. Weiss's friendship for the old soldiers we might add that his record in congress shows him to be equally as sound a friend to the people in general. He is a large manufacturer but this does not prevent him from working in the interest of the wage earner.

The people of the eighth district would be indeed fortunate if they had such a representative as Chas. H. Weiss and the following veterans of the civil war for whom he secured pensions have reason to be glad that he is there:

Edward T. Tucker $30, Samuel H. Chambers $40, Truman H. Baldwin $30, Eri B. Sablin $30, Anna Fick $12, Catherine Seilerlich $16, James Bowe $24, Andreas Schmidt $30, Charles Brown $24, Edward Williams $24, Frederick Dicke $24, Frederick Soh-wieder $24, Michael Metzger $24, John D. Owen $24, Martin Kohn $30, William Nelson $24, Hugo Arndt $24, John N. Braun $30, George B. Jones $24, Joachim Schultz $30, Eliza J. Tyler $24, Henry Erdman $24, Wm. Lange $30, Gustave Timble $30, James P. Mallison $24, James O. Cummings $24, Silas M. Aders $36, Wm. Boldt $30, Joseph Crugum $30.

FROM MAYVILLE.

Through the efforts of our Congressman C. H. Weiss of Sheboygan Falls, Wis. Mrs. Rosy Gregetti of this city has been allowed a pension of $8 a month from August 15, 1905. Mr. Weiss has been doing a great deal of hard work in obtaining pensions for those entitled to them. — Mayville News.

WEISSE HELPS OLD SOLDIERS.

Congressman Weiss has secured an increase of pension for George C. Powell of Waupun to $24; an increase for Frederick Feuz of Kekoskee to $24; an increase for Julius Beier of Burnett to $30 and an original pension for Minnie Irwin of Waupun for $8. Mr. Weiss may not have earned the gratitude of the corporations during his term of office, but there is no question but that he has earned that of the old veterans and their families. — Horicon Representative.

DEEPLY GRATEFUL.

Through the efforts of Congressman Weiss a bill has passed both houses of congress granting an increase of pension from $12 to $30 a month for James E. Andrews, of Glenbeulah, who served with Co. G., Thirty-seventh regiment, Wisconsin Volunteers, in the rebellion. Mr. Andrews is totally blind. Through this assistance he will be enabled to live comfortably and he feels deeply grateful to Mr. Weiss. — Sheboygan Telegram. (Republican.)

GETS HIS REWARD.

On Wednesday Congressman Weiss succeeded in obtaining the passage by the house of a bill granting a pension of $30 per month to William Painter of this city, a veteran of the civil war and who is in most needy circumstances. Mr. Painter was a Wisconsin Central employe for years but is at the present time a cripple, and is making his home with M. Lambert who resides on Hickory street. His condition is serious and the cause can be traced back to an injury received during the war. This is the kind of efficient work that Congressman Weiss is doing and which entitles him to the respect of all residents of the district irrespective of party. — Fond du Lac Daily Bulletin.

THE GREAT DANGER.

When you hear some one decrying the entrance of Congressman Charles H. Weiss into the senatorial race, make up your mind that it comes from those who think more of serving the republican party than looking to the welfare of Wisconsin Democracy.

Mr. Weiss entered the senatorial race believing that such a step was for the good of the party, as under the 20 per cent law enacted in the last legislature, there was grave danger in failing to get out a vote sufficient to insure a ticket in the field in some counties.

This danger is apparent today and the wisdom shown by Mr. Weiss in taking the step he has, is being commended all over the state. In our own neighboring county, Manitowoc, the danger of the 20 per cent law is apparent. There is no contest in the primary for state senator. In order to get on the Democratic ballot at the November election Senator Randolph must poll 1,134 votes at the primary. The county ticket must poll 795. Failure to do this will mean individual nominations. But for the contest of United States Senator there would be nothing to bring out the Democratic vote in Manitowoc county. This instance is cited because Manitowoc is our near neighbor and the conditions existing there exist in other counties in the state. The 20 per cent law was enacted to put the Democratic party out of the running and the sooner it is realized and a determined fight waged by all loyal Democratic papers the better it will be.

Congressman Weiss is in this campaign to bring out the Democratic vote. He has always been a Democrat, and if Democrats would awake to the seriousness of this new law, there would be no question but what every county would have a Democratic ticket in the field after the primary. — Sheboygan Press.

ONLY RECOMMENDING.

Have the voters ever stopped to think or to consider the full meaning of the primary election law. When it was placed on the statute books its aim was to do away with a corrupt caucus system whereby delegates were chosen not by the masses but by the few, and when they entered a convention voiced the sentiments of the few and not the many.

The right to convene and to recommend no one has ever disputed and no true democrat can, but further than this no convention can go. No action can be taken which will in any way bar a candidate running for office. If this was done, then the law would be a farce, it would be even worse than the old caucus system, for there is little or no plan to govern the selection of delegates. Every American citizen has the right to place his name before the voters — the people are the real jurors — their decision or verdict is the one that stands, that is binding.

This has been the principle of the primary election law and it is right. It aims to place in the hands of the people the weapon by which they may say who should and who should not serve them as public servants. No one man can dictate — the verdict comes from those who on primary day go to the polls and cast their votes. Bear in mind Mr. Voter that a convention is nothing more than a recommending body under our law, and rightfully so. To go further than this would be a violation of the statutes and every lawyer in the broad state of Wisconsin will agree on this point.

You Mr. Voter have just as much right under the law as your neighbor, no less no more. You can study the character of the men running for office and you are better able to say who you want to serve you than some person who in a recommending convention suggests the name of a gentleman for a certain office.

To say that Mr. Weiss should not offer his name before the voters of Wisconsin, if he sees fit, kills the full freedom that is guaranteed under the primary election law.

It proves also that the masses are reading and thinking, and are alert to what the men are doing at Washington. — Plymouth Reporter.

Congressman Chas. H. Weiss, of Sheboygan, announced last week that he would be a candidate for United States Senator on the democratic ticket. His announcement caused little or no surprise, as he had declared quite a few weeks ago that he would under no circumstances seek renomination for congress, but might consider becoming a candidate for the U. S. Senate. It is generally conceded that he is doing this for the best interest of the party; for his candidacy in opposition to Burt Williams, of Ashland, who was named in the state convention as the party's choice, will in all probability tend to bring out a larger vote at the primaries, thereby strengthening the position of the party in the state. Besides, Hon. C. H. Weiss has always been a sincere believer in all truly progressive principles and stood for the rights of the people against corporations trying to encroach upon them. In case of his election Wisconsin would be well represented in the Senate. — Jefferson Banner.

MR. WEISSE MAKES PUBLIC THE LETTERS

The Spirit of Fairness is Shown in Every Letter to His Opponent Before the Primary—Copy of Letter to State Chairman Davies.

Congressman Charles H. Weiss has accepted the invitation of his opponent to publish the letters he had written to the Ashland man. The letters together with one to State Chairman Davies are made public. In reference to the letters written by his opponent these will be made public if it is the desire of the gentleman from the north. The following is a statement to the Milwaukee News from Mr. Weiss:

M. Weiss's Statement.

Editor Daily News: On July 25 last, Mr. Burt Williams of Ashland published an article through the columns of your paper, requesting me to have published my letters to him relative to my candidacy for United States senator.

Since Mr. Williams has made this request, I believe in justice to myself and the voters of Wisconsin that I should publish my letters to him and I desire to do so through your paper.

On July 15, immediately after I returned from the Milwaukee convention, I wrote Mr. Williams a letter in which I stated that I would be a candidate for the senate and that I desired him to remain in the field so that the contest would bring out the Democratic vote at the primaries. The following is a true copy of my letter:

"Sheboygan Falls, Wis., July 15, 1910. — Mr. Burt Williams, Ashland, Wis. — Friend Burt. You will no doubt see a good many articles in the newspapers in the next few days, but do not be influenced by any of them in any way, stay in the senatorial race and make a positive statement that you will be a candidate.

"Conditions have now got settled in the Sixth district and chances are I will be a candidate with you, but in the most friendly way, only to assist you in getting out your votes in the primaries so we can get a place upon the ticket.

"I have written to the chairman of our national committee, also the chairman of our congressional committee, and will see if it is possible to secure some funds for our campaign. I have had this up with the chairman of the congressional committee and he said there was not a single cent he could give us for our congressional campaign. When I receive their letters, will mail them to you.

"As this matter goes along, you will find this will be a campaign for the benefit of the Democrats and no one else, as we have things in shape now that we will be able to make some showing. Confidentially yours,

"CHAS. H. WEISSE."

On July 19, I wrote Mr. Williams the following letter:

"Sheboygan Falls, Wis., July 19, 1910. — Mr. Burt Williams, Ashland, Wis. — Dear Sir: I received your telegram and noted, but up to the present time I have not the letter from you. As soon as your letters come I will advise you further, also before I take any action I shall meet you personally and talk over matters fully, as I want to do what is to the best interest to the Democratic party of the state. No doubt we can go over these matters thoroughly before taking any action. Yours respectfully,

"CHAS. H. WEISSE."

"Sheboygan Falls, Wis., July 25, 1910. Mr. Jos. Davies, Madison, Wis. — Dear Sir: I expressed you today 150 nomination blanks which you can mail out amongst your voters. Also will state, if you can get up two lists of the prominent working Democrats in the state, mail one to me and one to Williams and I will pay you for your work, as I want it strictly understood that I do not want you to do anything for me that is not duplicated to Williams in every way. I want to pay for this work that you do for us independent from the state campaign fund, as I do not want any one to say we used this fund, as they have before, to help nominate any of the candidates. Also send me the names of the members that have been nominated for the assembly and the districts where we have made no nomination.

Donna and send Burt Williams the same.

"Hoping you will be able to secure help in furnishing the list during the week, I remain, yours respectfully,

"CHAS. H. WEISSE."

The above letters under date of July 15, July 19 and July 25 are the only letters which I have written Mr. Williams in the matter of my candidacy, and the one to Mr. Davies, and were the letters to which he refers in his article written in your paper.

Wants the Public to Understand.

In my first letter I announced myself as a candidate for the senate. In my second letter I wrote him that I would see him and talk over matters, which was in regard to conducting the campaign as candidate for the senate. These letters need no further explanation on my part, as they speak for themselves, and I am willing the readers should be their own judge in this matter.

I received letters from Mr. Williams which I regard as confidential. Should he desire to have his letters to me published, I will be pleased to have you do so.

I am having the above letters published so that the public can be informed as to the contents and judge for themselves the merit of Mr. Williams's statement.

I became a candidate for the senate in the interest of the Democratic party; did not know that there was any one in the convention at Milwaukee who desired to foreclose any Democrat from becoming a candidate, but that the sentiment of the convention was unanimous, that candidates should be encouraged to enter the field for every office in the interest of the party. Every name that was presented at the convention was recommended without a dissenting vote, and in fact, every delegate was anxious to have more candidates presented, so that the party could secure a 20 per cent vote at the primaries and get a place upon the state ticket.

At this convention the Democrats were confronted with a very serious question. If we failed to secure 20 per cent of our vote at the primaries, the Democratic party would be destroyed not only in this campaign, but in all future campaigns, until the Republicans should see fit to repeal this 20 per cent law.

Many of the delegates believed that this 20 per cent vote could be secured better by naming progressive candidates, so that the Democrats throughout the state would be sure, not only of a progressive platform, but also of progressive candidates. Others in the convention believed seriously that the more contests we had the more chance there would be of securing the 20 per cent vote and saving the Democratic party.

After the convention had adjourned in conversation with Democrats in this belief, I was impressed with their sincerity, and in view of the expressed desire of so many, that we should have a wide-wide contest, I concluded I could serve the party by entering into a friendly contest with Mr. Williams.

I have always been in favor of the principles of the primary election law; my record in congress has never been questioned from a Democratic standpoint, and I submit this to the voters. Respectfully yours,

CHAS. H. WEISSE.

Sheboygan Falls, Wis., Aug. 2, 1910.

The Democrats have no occasion to go with either faction of the Republican party thereby aiding in their row, but should go to the polls on primary day and vote for a man for United States Senator who has been a life long Democrat. Hon. Charles H. Weiss of Sheboygan Falls has never deserted his party for a standpoint or a halfhearted, but has been a firm believer in the principles of democracy. — Prairie du Chien Courier.

The following from the Milwaukee Journal when that paper was still Democratic will be of interest at this time:

HARD FIGHT URGED TO GET OUT FULL DEMOCRATIC VOTE

STATE AND OTHER CANDIDATES ADDRESS GATHERING AT EAGLES' HALL.

A. J. SCHMITZ TELLS OF NECES-SITY OF 20 PER CENT VOTE.

Declares Protective Tariff Greatest Graft
Perpetrated on Public. Congressman
Weisse, Joseph P. Carney, Harry Bolens
and Others Deliver Talks. Sweeping Victory by Democrats is Predicted.

Adolph J. Schmitz Democratic candidate for governor, and nine other candidates last night urged the Democratic precinct workers of Milwaukee to work tooth and nail to get out at least 20 per cent of the Democratic vote in the primaries to insure a party place on the official ballot. The meeting was held at Eagles' hall on Second street.

Mr. Schmitz analyzed the primary law. He said it was a cunningly constructed bit of Republican legislation which would rob the Democratic party of its official standing unless patriotic partisans would labor zealously to perpetuate party organization.

"This matter is more serious than some of you think it is," said the speaker, who later urged all about the primary and launched an eloquent speech, striking at the vitals of the system of protective tariff and showing how it absorbs the earnings of the laboring class of the whole country.

In Need of 20 Per Cent.

"Think of it," he continued. "If we don't get out 20 per cent we will lose our standing as a party. The object of that law is to wipe out the Democratic party, to erase it from the political map. If we fail to vote our percentage, what then? How are we to proceed two years hence?
A candidate for governor is required to have the endorsement of 1 per cent of the voters of his party in the preceding election, to stand for office.
Now if there be no party vote in the preceding election it is plain to every one that the Democrats will have a mighty hard time regarding their official footing.

"This republic will not last unless you have two parties, one to keep tab on the other. The Democratic party is the party of history; it is the party that has accomplished great things for the welfare of the nation.
And now we find it in jeopardy because quarrelsome Republicans are seeking Democratic support in the primaries. Milwaukee News.

Says Democrats Will Win.

Professing supreme confidence that the democrats will capture the next house, Representative James T.
Lloyd, of Missouri, chairman of the democratic congressional committee, left Washington for the West. "All signs point to the election of a democratic house," he said. "Our reports are all one way. More demands are being made on the committee for literature than in any campaign in many years."

Congressman Geo. E. Foss of Chicago, a brother of Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, who was elected last spring on the democratic ticket in a strong republican district, was in Oshkosh last week and was interviewed by "The Northwestern" one of the leading, republican papers.
Among other things in speaking of his brother he said:

"Eugene never ran on the Democratic ticket until last spring. Up to that time he had always been a staunch Republican, but he split with the party on the tariff and wither than ran as an insurgent, he chose the Democratic nomination in a district that had always been Republican and was elected by a majority of 10,000. I was visiting with him last week and he said that what the Democratic party needed was a good thrashing, and the way to administer it was not from the inside
but from the outside. He believes that if a man strikes at the party from within a good many of the blows glance off without doing much good. And there is a good deal of truth in what he says."—Chicago

A Splendid Candidate.

The democracy of Wisconsin is indeed fortunate to have as its standard bearer in this state a man of such weight as Adolph J. Schmitz.
Mr. Schmitz democracy is not of the surface kind. He is a deep thinker and a logical reasoner for the faith that is in him.

A. J. Schmitz, Democratic candidate for governor, was asked by The Journal if he had read the article in which Judge Lindsey of Denver said:
"I consider it the duty of a progressive Democrat to support an insurgent Republican who is already in congress." "Even if that insurgent is opposed by a progressive Democrat who stands for precisely the same thing," and if he had observed in the papers that Judge Lindsey was coming to Wisconsin as a Democrat, to make speeches in favor of the insurgent Republican officeholders and whether he had any comment to make in relation to the same. In reply Mr. Schmitz said:

"Judge Lindsey has a very interesting personality, but when he comes as a democrat from Colorado to advise the Democrats of Wisconsin, that when an insurgent Republican office holder is running for office, with a progressive Democrat against him, it is the duty of Democrats to abandon their own progressive candidate and vote to continue the Republican in office, he will find the honest Democrat of the ranks. It is better posted on the situation in this state, than the judge from Denver.

"It is conceded and even emphasized
by the best students of our government, that two parties are essential in the interest of good government. This truth was never better demonstrated in our history than during the past fifteen years. The Democratic party, strong and aggressive, though in the minority, has thoroughly educated the public mind upon the rights of the people as against the aggressions of Special Privilege, created and continually fostered by the Republican party.
No progressive measure, either advocated or voted for by progressive Republicans, can be justified by any declaration in the Republican national platform. Substantially every proposition advanced by ex-President Roosevelt, or championed by the insurgent Republicans in congress, can be found in the Democratic national platform. In other words, the minority party has forced the majority party to abandon its own platform and find the principles which made Roosevelt and the insurgent popular, in the declaration of the minority party.

"This is the practical illustration of the value to the republic of a strong minority party. What is true in the nation is equally true in the state. An intelligent aggressive minority party can make itself felt in legislation in the interest of the people and bring home to the electors who are not blinded by partisan prejudice, the best and effective criticism of the acts of commission and omission on the part of the majority party.

Judge Lindsey is perhaps not aware of the fact that the Republicans in this state enacted a law which compels the Democrats to cast not less than 20 per cent of their vote at the primary election, in order to have a place as a political party on the official ballot at the general election. Had he known this, perhaps as a student of politics, and the value of a strong minority party, he would not advise Democrats to carry out the purpose of this legislation and give the death blow to their own party at the primary election.
In his comparison between the Wilson-Gorman tariff act and the "Smooth-Pain-All-Relief" tariff bill, he ought to know that the Democratic lower house of Congress enacted a progressive measure; that the entire Republican membership of the senate with, I believe, two Democratic traitors to their party, enacted a law which was a betrayal of the promises which the party had made to the people. And mark the difference between the action of a Democratic president and the action of Mr. Taft.
President Cleveland refused to sign the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill and denounced it as an act of party perfidy.
President Taft on the other hand,
gleefully signed the Payne-Aldrich bill, and, although denounced by every disinterested patriotic thinking citizen in the country as a betrayal of the promises which Mr.
Taft made to the people, he went out on the stump and defended it as "the best tariff measure ever enacted by congress."

"The Democrats of the state would be pleased to have Judge Lindsey, during his sojourn in Wisconsin, give a little of his time in answering the following question:

"First—Is it not a fact that the entire Republican national administration, from the president, down through his cabinet and the large majority of the members of the senate and house of representatives, and the appointive Republican officers, including the postmaster at the cross roads, are and Progressive?
And is it not also a fact that the entire patronage of this government is used for the purpose of opposing progressive measures and advocates of these measures in the Republican party?"

"Second—It is not a fact also that the leading Republican press of the country and substantially all of the daily republican press of the state of Wisconsin, is anti-Progressive?
Third—Is it not a fact that all the insurgents insist that they are Republicans and protectionists, and that they and their friends defend their course of insurgency by asserting that the Republican insurgents are rendering a service to the Republican national party in special privilege party, which will prevent its complete annihilation?"

Fourth—in view of the fact that every measure upon the statute books
today in favor of Special Privileges, every law which is oppressing the masses, was enacted by the members of the republican party, some of whom are "insurgents" and others
"Standpatters", do you think if the part of wisdom or patriotism for Democrats to support insurgent Republicans, if opposed by Progresssive Democrats, and keep such Republicans in position, where because of their political conduct, sincere or otherwise, they can keep the Republican party in power, keeping in mind that all its members, insurgents and Standpatters, favor a tariff law that grants protection and Special Privileges to a few at the expense of the many?"

Fifth—Is it not a fact that every Progressive measure to which President Taft and his champions are now pointing with pride, was enacted over the protests of the administration advisers, by virtually a solid Democratic vote in both houses of congress together with a mere handful of Republican insurgents; and is it not a fact that, because of the enactment of this legislation, by the Democrats in congress and a few Republican insurgents, many people are deceived into the conclusion that the Taft administration thus far has actually been Progressive?"

Sixth—Is it not a fact that if the insurgent Republicans pursued their course of insurgency, as their friends
now state, to save the Republicans party from utter annihilation, that Republicans did not manifest the same measure of patriotism as the Democrats in the last congress, who knowing that the Republican administration would claim credit for the enactment of all progressive legislation, though forced upon it, nevertheless placed the interests of their country above that of party advantage, and championed and voted for the enactment of all progressive measures?"

"Ninth—If the claims which are now being made by insurgent Republicans of Wisconsin and their friends to the effect that they alone have given the Republican national party,
the party of greed and graft, of Special Privilege, extravagance and waste—a new lease of power and that it is only their continued insurgency in the house of representatives and senate, which can possibly save the party from utter defeat at the next presidential election, be true, do you honestly believe that Democrats are rendering a service either to the state or nation, by voting against their own Progressive candidates and in favor of Republican insurgent office holders?"

Tenth—Is it not a fact that the most advanced Republican insurgent still stands for the principle of the protective tariff, thereby granting Special Privileges to certain favored business interests, to enable such interest, thus favored to sell their goods in this country at a higher price, than they sell the same in foreign countries;
and in this connection, is it not true that the tariff beneficiaries, instead of distributing this increased cost of their production among their laborers, coolly direct it into their own pockets?"

Eleventh—Is not any law, granting to the tariff-sheltered trusts the privilege of levying tribute upon the American people, however small, in practice as well as principle, the most obnoxious and oppressive Special Privilege granted to any of the favored few in this country?

"Twelfth—Are not all Republicans,
whether Insurgents or Standpatters,
who favor a tariff for protection, supporting the doctrine of Special Privileges to a few at the expense of many?"

"A frank answer to these questions either by Judge Lindsey, or other Democratic or Insurgent Republican, will be both interesting and instructive to the electors of the state. I have no doubt that if the judge will answer all these questions in his usual frank manner, he will rest assured of a large attendance of Democrats at his meetings. Progressive Democrats in Wisconsin are taking a profound interest in questions of this character."—Milwaukee Journal.

Danger! Democrats, Be Loyal!

Due to the passage of an unjust law by the last Legislature, the existence of the Democratic Party in this State is in danger. Unless the Democratic candidates for every office, state and county, receive twenty per cent of the vote cast for the nominee for governor at the last General Election, the names of the Democratic nominees do not go under the Democratic column. If the Democratic candidate for governor does not receive twenty per cent of the vote in the primaries, there will be no Democratic nominee for governor at this election, and two years hence there will be no Democratic Party recognized by law in the State of Wisconsin, as there will be no "votes cast for the Democratic nominee for governor at the last General Election."

The good of the Commonwealth demands a strong minority party in this state or any state. Good citizenship, as well as party loyalty, demands that Democrats stay in their own primaries on September 6th.
Democrats should resist this attempt to disrupt a great party, rebuke such action, and stay in their own primaries on September 6th.

The State Convention.

Wisconsin democracy has made an admirable start for the state campaign.

The convention which closed in the early hours of Wednesday morning was an enthusiastic, earnest and patriotic body, wearing the color of no man nor special interest, but animated by a desire to establish the general and progressive principles of true democracy.

The earnestness of the debate, and
the length of it in some instances, while exasperating during the late hours, was in itself an indication of the independence and power of the delegates, and the happy ending of the convention, with united purpose and no wounds, is a gratifying evidence of success.

The platform is progressive and strong and should enlist the hearty support of every progressive citizen of the state. It deals with the great questions which now agitate the people and handles them without equivocation, fairly, squarely and powerfully. It declares again for the essentially democratic principles which the republicans have ostensibly expounded at times for campaign purposes, only to abandon them when returned to power.

The list of nominees consists of able, honest men—men who if chosen to office, will not betray the interests of the people who placed them there, but who will labor for the advancement of the principles to which the party stands pledged.

Democracy in Wisconsin confronts today its greatest opportunity in years. The state convention has risen to the occasion, not opportunistically, but by consistent adherence to the fundamental policy of true democracy, the good of the people. Let the members of the party cease chasing after false gods, and work unitedly along the lines established by the convention and they will be supported by thousands of former republicans, weary of misrule, misrepresentation and false pretense.
—Milwaukee Daily News.

It is not, however, in a platform so much as in the spirit with which it is adopted that a party's attitude is to be determined. The people are quite familiar with platforms that are adopted "to get in on" and that are not taken seriously by their authors.
In the Payne-Aldrich revision of the tariff they were treated to the spectacle of a repudiation of solemn pledges. The spirit of the Democratic convention was Progressive. It manifested its faith by its work.—Milwaukee Journal.

A Democratic Year.

Antigo Weekly News Item: You
Democrats of little faith and weak knees are you aware that this is a Democratic year, to be specified with a big D?

Do you know, or realize, that the Democrats are going to be in control of the next Congress and that history will be made at that session?"

Do you realize that in Wisconsin the Democratic party is mighty able to sweep the state clean this fall, elect a governor and other state officers? Well this is liable to happen if you Democrats will stand by your guns and not follow off some will-owisp candidate or theory.

This is certainly a Democratic year, and everything points to this fact. There are dissensions in Republican ranks that will demoralize
the party, and the people are thoroughly dissatisfied with existing conditions. From all sections of the country come reports that tend to show an unusual political disturbance and an upheaval is sure to follow with the result that the people will arrive at a sane view of the situation and realize that in the Democratic party is the only source through which they can seek redress and right their wrongs.

The Democratic members of Congress, with possibly a few exceptions, have shown that they stand for all that is best in politics, and for the good of the people, and this has added greatly to the strength of the party. With a record of clean actions and the best interests of the people at heart there is every reason to believe that the public is coming to the view point of regarding the Democratic party as something more than a political machine, and that it is the only means through which the great wrongs that have been forced upon the people through years of Republican misrule and trust domination can be righted.

Democrats, you have every reason to feel proud of your party and of the record of most of your representatives in Congress and if behooves
you to get out and do some strenuous work this fall to the end that results may be accomplished. Do your duty and this will surely prove
a Democratic year.

The Primary Election Sept. 6th
is of more than usual importance.
Every Democratic voter should go to the poll and vote for Democratic candidates in order to make up the 20 per cent vote necessary to give the Democratic ticket a place on the Official Ballot. In the past little interest was taken in the primaries.
Hardly six per cent of the democrats attended the primaries. Now they should vote their own ticket, or their party will be wiped off from the official ballot.—Prairie du Chien Courier.

THE DEMOCRATIC REVIVAL.

There are symptoms of a Democratic revival in Wisconsin. The Democrats themselves are taking hold with an earnestness and enthusiasm that give promise of the party's rehabilitation as a political force in the state's affairs.

Throughout the state, there is seen a disposition to place complete tickets in the field. A strong effort is being made to bring out the Democratic vote at the primary. A campaign has been opened by the Progressive leaders of the party to make direct appeal to the voters. In Milwaukee, the candidates for governor and United States senator will be the central figures at a Democratic preprimary rally at the South Side Turn hall tonight. In every quarter, the Democrats are showing an unusual zeal and activity.

In the absence of a formidable opposition, the Republican party in Wisconsin unquestionably has lacked the check necessary in party government to insure efficiency and economy in the conduct of public affairs.

If the Democratic party of Wisconsin should be revitalized, the people of Wisconsin could not help but advantage from it. For it would hold the dominant party in restraint and in event a change of parties should be deemed desirable an efficient instrument for the administration of state government would be placed at the people's command.

There is no reason that the Democratic party in Wisconsin should not be restored to its former position. In Indiana and Ohio we find the Democratic party in control of the state affairs. Even in Minnesota, we find the Democrats electing their candidate to the office of governor, though the state is strongly Republican.—Milwaukee Journal.

CHAIRMAN DAVIES ON THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK IN STATE

CALLS ATTENTION TO DEMO-CRATS TO THE SO-CALLED 20 PER CENT LAW.

SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY TO WIN
HE DECLARES.

Issues Open Letter to Democrats - Asks
Them to Vote in Their Own Primaries to Insure Continued Existence of Party - Posters being Distributed Throughout the State.

Chairman J. E. Davies of the Democratic state central committee passed through Milwaukee last night en route to Ashland. Talking of the Democratic situation in the state,
Mr. Davies said a great deal depended on the interest shown by Democratic voters in the primary election
as to whether compliance was made with the law requiring a party to cast 20 per cent of its party vote in the primary election to obtain a place on the official ballot.

Mr. Davies' Statement.

Interviewed Mr. Davies said:
"The state central committee is seriously impressed with the danger arising out of the so-called 20 p. c.
law. Of the loyalty of the Democratic voters we have no particular fear
but we have serious apprehension lest the effect of this law and its existence shall not be brought to the knowledge of the voters.

"We not only have a splendid opportunity to win, but deserve to win.
Our platform is a strong recommendation of the best there is in democracy. It is progressive and it is conservative, by reason of the fact that true progressiveness is the sanest conservatism. Our state ticket presents to the people a splendid set of men of high character and attainments and ability.

"At headquarters we are doing everything that lies in our power to perfect and reorganize our entire state organization. But we cannot do it alone. It rests in large measure with Democrats throughout the state. The organization is wasting its energy and wasting its time, unless it receives the active support of prominent Democrats in their respective communities.

"There never has been a time in the last fourteen years that has been more propitious for the success of Democracy in this state. I have faith in the common sense of the people of the state of Wisconsin; and if we all pull together, there is strong probability that it will result in the
"cleaning house" of the state capitol, which must be of advantage to the state in view of the continuance of one-party rule and administration
these many years."—Milwaukee News.

HARD FIGHT URGED TO GET OUT FULL DEMOCRATIC VOTE

A. J. SCHMITZ TELLS OF NECESSITY OF 20 PER CENT VOTE.

Declares Protective Tariff Greatest Craft
Perpetrated on Public—Congressman

Victory by Democrats is Predicted.

Adolph J. Schmitz, Democratic candidate for governor, and nine other candidates last night urged the Democratic precinct workers of Milwaukee to work tooth and nail to get out at least 20 per cent of the Democratic vote in the primaries to insure a party place on the official ballot. The meeting was held at Eagles' hall on Second street.

Mr. Schmitz analyzed the primary law. He said it was a cunningly contrived bit of Republican legislation which would rob the Democratic party of its official standing unless patriotic partisans would labor zealously to perpetuate party organization.

"This matter is more serious than some of you think it is," said the speaker, who later forgot all about the primary and launched an eloquent speech, striking at the vitals of the system of protective tariff and showing how it absorbs the earnings of the laboring class of the whole country.

In Need of 20 Per Cent.

"Think of it," he continued. "If we don't get our 20 per cent we will lose our standing as a party. The object of that law is to wipe out the Democratic party, to erase it from the political map. If we fail to vote our percentage, what then? How are we to proceed two years hence? A candidate for governor is required to have the endorsement of 1 per cent of the voters of his party in the preceding election, to stand for office. Now if there be no party vote in the preceding election it is plain to every one that the Democrats will have a mighty hard time regaining their official footing.

"This republic will not last unless you have two parties, one to keep tab on the other. The Democratic party is the party of history. It is the party that has accomplished great things for the welfare of the nation. And now we find it in jeopardy because quarrelsome Republicans are seeking Democratic support in the primaries.—Milwaukee News.

Says Democrats Will Win.

Professing supreme confidence that the Democrats will capture the next house, Representative James T. Lloyd, of Missouri, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, left Washington for the West. "All signs point to the election of a Democratic house," he said. "Our reports are all one way. More demands are being made on the committee for literature than in any campaign in many years."

Congressman Geo. E. Foss of Chicago, a brother of Eugene S. Foss of Massachusetts, who was elected last spring on the Democratic ticket in a strong republican district, was interviewed by The Northwestern one of the leading republican papers. Among other things in speaking of his brother he said:

"Eugene never ran on the Democratic ticket until last spring. Up to that time he had always been a staunch Republican, but he split with the party on the tariff and rather than run as an insurgent, he chose the Democratic nomination in a district that had always been Republican and was elected by a majority of 10,000. I was visiting with him last week and he said that what the Republican party needed was a good thrashing, and the way to administer it was not from the inside but from the outside. He believes that if a man strikes at the party from within a good many of the blows glance off without doing much good. And there is a good deal of truth in what he says."—Chicago Times

A Splendid Candidate.

The democracy of Wisconsin is indeed fortunate to have as its standard bearer in this state a man of such weight as Adolph J. Schmitz. Mr. Schmitz democracy is not of the surface kind. He is a deep thinker and can give reasons for the faith that is in him.

A. J. Schmitz, Democratic candidate for governor, was asked by The Journal if he had read the article in which Judge Lindsey of Denver said: "I consider it the duty of a progressive Democrat to support an insurgent Republican who is already in congress * * * even if that insurgent is opposed by a progressive Democrat who stands for precisely the same thing," and if he had observed in the papers that Judge Lindsey was coming to Wisconsin as a Democrat, to make speeches in favor of the insurgent Republican office holders and whether he had any comment to make in relation to the same. In reply Mr. Schmitz said:

"Judge Lindsey has a very interesting personality, but when he comes as a Democrat from Colorado to advise the Democrats of Wisconsin, that when an insurgent Republican office holder is running for office, with a progressive Democrat against him, it is the duty of Democrats to abandon their own progressive candidate and vote to continue the Republican in office, he will find the honest Democrat of the ranks is better posted on this situation in this state, than the judge from Denver.

"It is conceded and even emphasized, by the best students of our government, that two parties are essential in the interest of good government. This truth was never better demonstrated in our history than during the past fifteen years. The Democratic party, strong and aggressive, though in the minority, has thoroughly educated the public mind upon the rights of the people as against the aggressions of Special Privilege, created and continually fostered by the Republican party. No progressive measure, either advocated or voted for by progressive Republicans, can be justified by any declaration in the Republican national platform. Substantially every proposition advocated by ex-President Roosevelt, or championed by the insurgent Republicans in congress, can be found in the Democratic national platform. In other words, the minority party has forced the majority party to abandon its own platform and had the principles which made Roosevelt and the insurgents popular in the declaration of the minority party.

"This is the practical illustration of the value to the republic of a strong minority party. What is true in the nation is equally true in the state. An intelligent aggressive minority party can make itself felt in legislation in the interest of the people and bring home to the electors who are not blinded by partisan prejudice, the best and effective criticism of the acts of commission and omission on the part of the majority party.

Judge Lindsey is perhaps not aware of the fact that the Republicans in this state enacted a law which compels the Democrats to cast not less than 20 per cent of their vote at the primary election, in order to have a place as a political party on the official ballot at the general election. Had he known this, perhaps as a student of politics, and the value of a strong minority party, he would not advise Democrats to carry out the purpose of this legislation and give the death blow to their own party at the primary election. In his comparison between the Wilson-Gorman tariff act and the "Smoot-Paine-Aldrich" tariff bill, he ought to know that the Democratic lower house of Congress enacted a Progressive measure; that the entire Republican membership of that senate with, I believe, two Democratic traitors to their party, enacted a law which was a betrayal of the promises which the party had made to the people. And mark the difference between the action of a Democratic president and the action of Mr. Taft. President Cleveland refused to sign the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill and denounced it as an act of party perfidy. President Taft on the other hand, gleefully signed the Paine-Aldrich bill, and, although denounced by every disinterested patriotic-thinking citizen in the country as a betrayal of the promises which Mr. Taft made to the people, he went out on the stump and defended it as "the best tariff measure ever enacted by congress."

"The Democrats of this state would be pleased to have Judge Lindsey, during his sojourn in Wisconsin, give a little of his time in answering the following question:

"First—Is it not a fact that the entire Republican national administration, from the president, down through his cabinet and the large majority of the members of the senate and house of representatives, and the appointive Republican officers, including the postmaster at the cross roads, are anti-Progressive? And is it not also a fact that the entire patronage of this government is used for the purpose of opposing Progressive measures and advocates of these measures in the Republican party?"

"Second—Is it not a fact also that the leading Republican press of the country and substantially all of the daily republican press of the state of Wisconsin, is anti-Progressive?"

"Third—Is it not a fact that all the insurgents insist that they are Republicans and protectionists, and that they and their friends defend their course of insurgency by asserting that the Republican insurgents are rendering a service to the Republican national party in special Privilege party, which will prevent its complete annihilation?"

"Fourth—In view of the fact that every measure upon the statute books today in favor of Special Interests, every law which is oppressing the masses, was enacted by the members of the republican party, some of whom are 'insurgents' and others 'Standpatters', do you think it the part of wisdom or patriotism for Democrats to support insurgent Republicans, if opposed by Progressive Democrats, and keep such Republicans in position, where because of their political conduct, sincere or otherwise, they can keep the Republican party in power, keeping in mind that all its members, insurgents and Standpatters, favor a tariff law that grants protection and Special Privileges to a few at the expense of the many?"

"Fifth—Is it not a fact that every Progressive measure to which President Taft and his champions are now pointing with pride, was enacted over the protests of the administration advisers, by virtually a solid Democratic vote in both houses of congress together with a mere handful of Republican insurgents; and is it not a fact that, because of the enactment of this legislation, by the Democrats in congress and a few Republican insurgents, many people are deceived into the conclusion that the Taft administration thus far has actually been Progressive?"

"Sixth—Is it not a fact that if the insurgent Republicans pursued their course of insurgency, as their friends now state, to save the Republicans party from utter annihilation, that Republicans did not manifest the same measure of patriotism as the Democrats in the last congress, who knowing that the Republican administration would claim credit for the enactment of all progressive legislation, though forced upon it, nevertheless placed the interests of their country above that of party advantage, and championed and voted for the enactment of all progressive measures?"

"Ninth—If the claims which are now being made by insurgent Republicans of Wisconsin and their friends to the effect that they alone have given the Republican national party, the party of greed and graft, of Special Privilege, extravagance and waste—a new lease of power and that it is only their continued insurgency in the house of representatives and senate, which can possibly save the party from utter defeat at the next presidential election, be true, do you honestly believe that Democrats are rendering a service either to the state or nation, by voting against their own Progressive candidates and in favor of Republican insurgent office holders?"

"Tenth—Is it not a fact that the most advanced Republican insurgent still stands for the principle of the protective tariff, thereby granting Special Privileges to certain favored business interests, to enable such interest, thus favored to sell their goods in this country at a higher price, than they sell the same in foreign countries; and in this connection, is it not true that the tariff beneficiaries, instead of distributing this increased cost of their production among their laborers, coolly direct it into their own pockets?"

"Eleventh—Is not any law, granting to the tariff-sheltered trusts the privilege of levying tribute upon the American people, however small, in practice as well as principle, the most obnoxious and oppressive Special Privilege granted to any of the favored few in this country?"

"Twelfth—Are not all Republicans, whether insurgents or Standpatters, who favor a tariff for protection, supporting the doctrine of Special Privileges to a few at the expense of many?"

"A frank answer to these questions either by Judge Lindsey, or other Democrat or Insurgent Republican, will be both interesting and instructive to the electors of the state. I have no doubt that if the judge will answer all these questions in his usual frank manner, he may rest assured of a large attendance of Democrats at his meetings. Progressive Democrats in Wisconsin are taking a profound interest in questions of this character.—[Milwaukee Journal.

Danger! Democrats, Be Loyal!

Due to the passage of an unjust law by the last Legislature, the existence of the Democratic Party in this State is in danger. Unless the Democratic candidates for every office, state and county, receive twenty per cent of the vote cast for the nominee for Governor at the last General Election, the names of the Democratic nominees do not go under the Democratic column. If the Democratic candidate for Governor does not receive twenty per cent of the vote in the primaries, there will be no Democratic nominee for Governor at this election, and two years hence there will be no Democratic Party recognized by law in the State of Wisconsin, as there will be no votes cast for the Democratic nominee for Governor at the last General Election.

The good of the Commonwealth demands a strong minority party in this state or any state. Good citizenship, as well as party loyalty, demands that Democrats stay in their own primaries on September 6th. Democrats should resent this attempt to disrupt a great party, rebuke such action, and stay in their own primaries on September 6th.

The State Convention.

Wisconsin democracy has made an admirable start for the state campaign.

The convention which closed in the early hours of Wednesday morning was an enthusiastic, earnest and patriotic body, wearing the collar of no man nor special interest, but animated by a desire to establish the genuine and progressive principles of true democracy.

The earnestness of the debate, and the length of it in some instances, while exasperating during the late hours, was in itself an indication of the independence and power of the delegates, and the happy ending of the convention, with united purpose and no wounds, is a gratifying earnest of success.

The platform is progressive and strong and should enlist the hearty support of every progressive citizen of the state. It deals with the great questions which now agitate the people and handles them without equivocation, fairly, squarely and powerfully. It declares again for the essentially democratic principles which the republicans have ostensibly espoused at times for campaign purposes, only to abandon them when returned to power.

The list of nominees consists of able, honest men—men who if chosen to office, will not betray the interests of the people who placed them there, but who will labor for the advancement of the principles to which the party stands pledged.

Democracy in Wisconsin confronts today its greatest opportunity in years. The state convention has risen to the occasion, not opportunistically, but by consistent adherence to the fundamental policy of true democracy, the good of the people. Let the members of the party cease chasing after false gods, and work unitedly along the lines established by the convention and they will be supported by thousands of former republicans, weary of misrule, misrepresentation and false pretense.—Milwaukee Daily News.

It is not, however, in a platform so much as in the spirit with which it is adopted that a party's attitude is to be determined. The people are quite familiar with platforms that are adopted "to get in on" and that are not taken seriously by their authors. In the Payne-Aldrich revision of the tariff they were treated to the spectacle of a repudiation of solemn pledges. The spirit of the Democratic convention was Progressive. It manifested its faith by its work.—Milwaukee Journal.

A Democratic Year.

Antigo Weekly News Item: You Democrats of little faith and weak knees are you aware that this is a Democratic year, to be specified with a big D?

Do you know, or realize, that the Democrats are going to be in control of the next Congress and that history will be made at that session?

Do you realize that in Wisconsin the Democratic party is mighty liable to sweep the state clean this fall, elect a governor and other state officers? Well this is liable to happen if you Democrats will stand by your guns and not follow off some will-o'-wisp candidate or theory.

This is certainly a Democratic year, and everything points to this fact. There are dissensions in Republican ranks that will demoralize the party, and the people are thoroughly dissatisfied with existing conditions. From all sections of the country come reports that tend to show an unusual political disturbance and an upheaval is sure to follow with the result that the people will arrive at a sane view of the situation and realize that in the Democratic party is the only source through which they can seek redress and right their wrongs.

The Democratic members of Congress, with possibly a few exceptions, have shown that they stand for all that is best in politics, and for the good of the people, and this has added greatly to the strength of the party. With a record of clean actions and the best interests of the people at heart there is every reason to believe that the public is coming to the view point of regarding the Democratic party as something more than a political machine, and that it is the only means through which the great wrongs that have been forced upon the people through years of Republican misrule and trust domination can be righted.

Democrats, you have every reason to feel proud of your party and of the record of most of your representatives in Congress and it behooves you to get out and do some strenuous work this fall to the end that results may be accomplished. Do your duty and this will surely prove a Democratic year.

The Primary Election Sept. 6th is of more than usual importance. Every Democratic voter should go to the poll and vote for Democratic candidates in order to make up the 20 per cent vote necessary to give the Democratic ticket a place on the Official Ballot. In the past little interest was taken in the primaries. Hardly six per cent of the democrats attended the primaries. Now they should vote their own ticket or their party will be wiped off from the official ballot.—Prairie du Chien Courier.

THE DEMOCRATIC REVIVAL.

There are symptoms of a Democratic revival in Wisconsin. The Democrats themselves are taking hold with an earnestness and enthusiasm that give promise of the party's rehabilitation as a political force in the state's affairs.

Throughout the state, there is seen a disposition to place complete tickets in the field. A strong effort is being made to bring out the Democratic vote at the primary. A campaign has been opened by the Progressive leaders of the party to make direct appeal to the voters. In Milwaukee, the candidates for governor and United States senator will be the central figures at a Democratic pre-primary rally at the South Side Turn hall tonight. In every quarter, the Democrats are showing an unusual zeal and activity.

In the absence of a formidable opposition, the Republican party in Wisconsin unquestionably has lacked the check necessary in party government to insure efficiency and economy in the conduct of public affairs.

If the Democratic party of Wisconsin should be revitalized, the people of Wisconsin could not help but advantage from it. For it would hold the dominant party in restraint and in event a change of parties should be deemed desirable an efficient instrument for the administration of state government would be placed at the people's command.

There is no reason that the Democratic party in Wisconsin should not be restored to its former position. In Indiana and Ohio we find the Democratic party in control of the state affairs. Even in Minnesota, we find the Democrats electing their candidate to the office of governor, though the state is strongly Republican.—Milwaukee Journal.

Chairman J. E. Davies of the Democratic state central committee passed through Milwaukee last night en route to Ashland. Talking of the Democratic situation in the state, Mr. Davies said a great deal depended on the interest shown by Democratic voters in the primary election as to whether compliance was made with the law requiring a party to cast 20 per cent of its party vote in the primary election to obtain a place on the official ballot.

Mr. Davies' Statement.

Interviewed Mr. Davies said: "The state central committee is seriously impressed with the danger arising out of the so-called 20 per cent law. Of the loyalty of the Democratic voters we have no particular fear but we have serious apprehension lest the effect of this law and its existence shall not be brought to the knowledge of the voters.

"We not only have a splendid opportunity to win, but deserve to win. Our platform is a strong enunciation of the best there is in Democracy. It is progressive and it is conservative, by reason of the fact that true progressiveness is the sanest conservatism. Our state ticket presents to the people a splendid set of men of high character and attainments and ability.

"At headquarters we are doing everything that lies in our power to perfect and reorganize our entire state organization. But we cannot do it alone. It rests largely measured with Democrats throughout the state. The organization is wanting its energy and waiting its time, unless it receives the active support of prominent Democrats in their respective communities.

R. M. Work of Elroy is in the city this week visiting with old time friends and renewing acquaintances. Mr. Work was at one time a resident of Grand Rapids, having come here first in 1836. He says that at that time there was nothing on the west side of the river that resembled a town and that all of the land could have been bought for a dollar or two an acre. Mr. Work is a veteran of the Civil war, having served in the Iron Brigade, and notwithstanding the fact that he is in his seventy-fourth year, he looks twenty years younger and seems to be as keen an observer of what is going on around him as a man of fifty. Mr. Work has made his home in Elroy for a number of years past, where he is engaged in the furniture business.

Shakespeare Speaks AND ON TO LONDON.

June 30.
By M. H. Jackson.

Think of an average of three hundred and fifty visitors a day to a village not in itself of special interest. Here at Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare was born, and here he lived and died. In the old, old church first built probably in the year 600, and in which he worshipped and in which his body lies buried, are the records of his birth and of his death.

The inscription on his tomb was probably written by himself:

"Good friend for Jesus sake forbear To dig the dust enclosed here: Those be ye men who spare these stones And curse be he who moves my bones."

Near this is the slab marking his wife's resting place:

"Hedre lyeth interned the body of Anne, wife of William Shakespeare who departed this life the 6th day of Aug. 1623, being of the age of 57 years."

Out in the yard is a stone seat which the villagers call "Longfellow's Stone." Upon it the great American poet used to sit beside the Avon and under the spell of the place, write his matchless songs.

The Ann Hathaway cottage is a mile away and in carriages we go out to visit it. You are all familiar with it from pictures scattered broadcast in homes and schools. Here is where Shakespeare wrote and won the fair Ann Hathaway. Villagers here claim to be able to point out the path made by him in his daily visits to the Hathaway home. We did not try to trace it.

The thatched roof held together by wire netting, much of the furniture and interior decorations are of a former age and are intimately associated with Shakespeare's time and with the poet himself. We then return and visit the birthplace and early home of the great man. In the birth-room in the second story of this building are to be found thousands of signatures on the walls, among which we find that of Carlyle, Browning, Byron and Thackeray.

This little village is not then merely the home of the greatest English dramatist. It has been and is the spot made sacred by the visits of many English and American writers. The visitors' registers contain many names familiar to us all in the field of literature.

On the way from Stratford to London, we pass through Oxford, the seat of the great Oxford University, the colleges of which date back for centuries in English history. We can not pass through here without making it a short visit.

Here Roosevelt a few weeks ago donned the cap and gown and received his honorary degree from Oxford. Here he delivered his address which so stirred the English nation, that they are still talking about it. I asked an Englishman at Oxford what he thought of Roosevelt's address and his answer was: "I think, sir, that 'e is not well versed in Egyptian politics." Another said: "He told us some facts, sir."

The "American bunch" of college boys are making things lively in Oxford. The old, old professors are looking through their gold-rimmed spectacles aglance at the rough-and-ready element from the United States that have gained admission to Oxford through the Cecil Rhodes scholarships. Classic Oxford finds them hard to analyze.

But the crowd from "the States" will do Oxford good. They will give more than they take. It was a fortunate day for Oxford when the "American boys" were admitted to that institution.

But our train is rushing on toward London and we must get ready to move as soon as we reach the depot. We pass Windsor Castle in plain view on our right. I wish we could stop for a short time, but it is not so planned.

London at last! The largest city in the Empire! The largest city in the world! We climb the winding stairs to the top of our omnibus, and sit near the driver that we may play him with questions as we go. Livered servants insist on opening and closing doors for me at the hotel. We go to the "lift" and move slowly to our comfortable room on the fifth floor. Here we unpack our possessions and proceed to make ourselves at home. We shall be here six days, and in that time we can touch only the very highest places. We shall live the "strenuous life" here so we fetter early to rest ourselves for the work before us.

We are in London! Here we shall see the splendid collection of paintings in the National Art Gallery. We shall visit the British Museum, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, the Tower, London Bridge, Old Curiosity Shop, Temple Bar, Crowded Streets, Trafalgar Square, Buckingham Palace, Cheapside, Fleet Street, the Strand, Piccadilly, Hyde Park, Kensington Gardens. Yes, we shall see them all—if we have time, and we fall asleep to dream of what tomorrow has in store for us.

Removing Rock a Slow Job.

The workmen that were engaged in digging out the rock for the basement of the Congregational church completed their work last week and from the looks of things in that locality the indications are that there was enough rock quarried to build half a dozen churches. This part of the work has proven very slow and has taken much more time than it was expected to. Workmen are now engaged on the foundation walls, and this part of the work is moving along nicely.

During the past week a gang of rascals have been busy laying the concrete blocks of the new building which L. M. Nash is erecting on the west side of his hardware store. The blocks are faced with granite which resembles the natural stone very closely, and the indications are that it will be a very handsome building when completed.

P. Mulroy returned on Friday from Yocco, Montana, where he had spent the past three weeks visiting with a married daughter whose husband is engaged in farming out in that country. During Mr. Mulroy's stay he had a chance to look over the country pretty thoroughly and was quite favorably impressed with the country and the opportunities that are open there.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when you start on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by all dealers.

It is not known how they are faring in other localities, but the political spellbinders who have visited this section during the past few weeks for the purpose of giving the people the truth from a republican standpoint, have not been favored with large houses. In fact, in several instances, the crowd has been almost entirely wanting. Either the people know all there is to learn about politics, or else they have made up their minds about the matter and do not care to hear anything that might induce them to change their minds.

This little village is not then merely the home of the greatest English dramatist. It has been and is the spot made sacred by the visits of many English and American writers. The visitors' registers contain many names familiar to us all in the field of literature.

On the way from Stratford to London, we pass through Oxford, the seat of the great Oxford University, the colleges of which date back for centuries in English history. We can not pass through here without making it a short visit.

Here Roosevelt a few weeks ago donned the cap and gown and received his honorary degree from Oxford. Here he delivered his address which so stirred the English nation, that they are still talking about it. I asked an Englishman at Oxford what he thought of Roosevelt's address and his answer was: "I think, sir, that 'e is not well versed in Egyptian politics." Another said: "He told us some facts, sir."

The "American bunch" of college boys are making things lively in Oxford. The old, old professors are looking through their gold-rimmed spectacles aghast at the rough-and-ready element from the United States that have gained admission to Oxford through the Cecil Rhodes scholarships. Classic Oxford finds them hard to analyze.

But the crowd from "the States" will do Oxford good. They will give more than they take. It was a fortunate day for Oxford when the "American boys" were admitted to that institution.

But our train is rushing on toward London and we must get ready to move as soon as we reach the depot. We pass Windsor Castle in plain view on our right. I wish we could stop for a short time, but it is not so planned.

London at last! The largest city in the Empire! The largest city in the world! We climb the winding stairs to the top of our omnibus, and sit near the driver that we may ply him with questions as we go. Livered servants insist on opening and closing doors for me at the hotel. We go to the "lift" and move slowly to our comfortable room on the fifth floor. Here we unpack our possessions and proceed to make ourselves at home. We shall be here six days, and in that time we can touch only the very highest of places. We shall live the "stratons life" here so, we retire early to rest ourselves for the work before us.

We are in London! Here we shall see the splendid collection of paintings in the National Art Gallery. We shall visit the British Museum, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, The Tower, London Bridge, Old Curiosity Shop, Temple Bar, Crowded Streets, Trafalgar Square, Buckingham Palace, Cheapside, Fleet Street, The Strand, Piccadilly, Hyde Park, Kensington Gardens. Yes, we shall see them all—if we have time, and we fall asleep to dream of what tomorrow has in store for us.

Removing Rock a Slow Job.

The workmen that were engaged in digging out the rock for the basement of the Congregational church completed their work last week and from the looks of things in that locality the indications are that there was enough rock quarried to build half a dozen churches. This part of the work has proven very slow and has taken much more time than it was expected to. Workmen are now engaged on the foundation walls, and this part of the work is moving along nicely.

Federal Fish Farming

By HUGH M. SMITH
U.S. DEPUTY COMMISSIONER OF FISHERIES

IT WAS nearly 10 years ago that the United States government first took the necessity of conserving the aquatic resources of the country, and began those operations in behalf of fish, fishermen and fish-enthusiasts that have now attained such gigantic proportions.

Several of the states had already established their local fish commissions or boards when in 1871 congress took the initial step toward a national fishery service by the passage of a joint resolution creating the office of commissioner of fish and fisheries.

The early years of the bureau of fisheries were devoted to an investigation of the condition of the fisheries of the Atlantic coast, Great Lakes, and other sections, to studies of the interior and coastal waters and their inhabitants, and to exploration of the offshore fishing banks. The cultivation of useful fishes was soon taken up throughout the country and quickly attained large proportions. The natural expansion of the work was materially augmented from time to time by acts of congress, and in a comparatively short time the operations came to have a very wide scope.

From year to year, as the importance of the work has become increasingly evident, additional hatcheries have been built, the capacity of existing hatcheries has been enlarged, the scale of the operations has been extended, and new kinds of fishes have been added to the output.

Today there is scarcely a phase of aquaculture, of the fishing industry, or of biological and physical science as connected with the streams was centered at six hatcheries and subhatcheries in 1909. At one of these the principal species handled is the Atlantic salmon, at four the shad, at three the yellow perch, at two the white perch, and at one the striped bass. In recent years the bureau has operated a shad hatchery on the Delaware river, and has detailed the steamer Fish Hawk for shad hatching in Maine, New Jersey, North Carolina and Florida. The central station, in Washington, is operated largely for experimental and exhibition purposes.

In order to counteract the effects of the very exhausting fisheries of the Great Lakes, the government has maintained hatcheries for many years, and now operates six belonging to the United States and two belonging to the state of Michigan. The fishes to which attention is given are those which enter most largely into the catch of the fishermen, namely, the whitefish, elose, lake trout, and pike perch, the annual output of which now exceeds one and a half billions. Under arrangement with the Canadian authorities, two egg-collecting stations for whitefish, elose, and lake trout are maintained at points in Ontario.

While surveying a new "bank" on the coast of Alaska, the government steamer Albatross in 20 minutes made the experimental catch of the cod and halibut shown in one of our illustrations. As a result of explorations of the Albatross on the Pacific coast, fisheries of great importance have been established there.

The hatcheries on the rivers and lakes of the Pacific coast are devoted almost exclusively to the various salmonines. In California, where the bureau established a salmon hatchery as early as 1872, there is one central or main station, at Baird, on the McCloud river, with important collecting stations on two other tributaries of the Sacramento. In Oregon a central hatchery at Oregon City, on the Willamette river, has three subhatcheries on tributaries of the Columbia. In Oregon and Washington, and three subhatcheries on tributaries of the Rogue river. Oregon, in addition to several egg-collecting stations.

The interests of the large salmon fisheries of the Puget Sound region are safeguarded by a hatchery on Baker lake, on the Skagit river.

A significant feature of artificial propagation on the Pacific seaboard is that in the Columbia basin the hatching of the acclimatized shad has begun on a small scale, and in the Sacramento basin the cultivation of the acclimatized striped bass has commenced under conditions which indicate that more eggs of this species may be obtained in California than in any of the states to which the fish is native.

The hatcheries in the interior regions constitute the most numerous class, and their output reaches the largest number of people. Their operations are addressed chiefly to the so-called "game" fishes, which, while caught mostly by anglers, nevertheless constitute an important element of the food supply. At these stations large numbers of fish are reared to the fingerling or yearling sizes before being released; for this purpose more or less extensive pond areas are required.

The fish-cultural work of the federal government has now attained a magnitude that cannot readily be comprehended, and is increasing at an exceedingly rapid rate. Especially noteworthy has been the increase in the hatchery product during the last few years, owing in part to the extension of operations at existing stations, and in part to greater efficiency of methods and appliances. The work during the fiscal year 1909 reached larger proportions than ever before, over three billion fish being produced and planted.

While the bureau does not lay undue stress on mere numbers and considers the quality of the fish and the conditions under which they are planted as of paramount importance, the foregoing figures are certainly very suggestive and as a further statement of the magnitude of the fish-cultural work, it may be of interest to record that the aggregate output of the hatcheries from 1872 to 1909 was about 28 billion, of which over 13 billion represents the work of the past six years.

In making his original plans for the systematic investigation of the waters of the United States and the biological and physical problems they present, Commissioner Baird stated that to study only the food-fishes would be of little importance, and that useful conclusions must needs rest upon a broad foundation of investigations purely scientific in character. The life history of species of economic value should be understood from beginning to end, but no less requisite is it to know the histories of the animals and plants upon which they feed, or upon which their food is nourished; the history of their enemies and friends, and the friends and foes of their enemies and friends, as well as the currents, temperatures, and other physical phenomena of the waters in relation to migration, reproduction and growth.

In pursuance of this policy the bureau has secured the services of many prominent men of science, and much of the progress in the artificial propagation of fishes, in the investigation of fishery problems, and in the extension of knowledge of our aquatic resources has been due to men eminent as zoologists who have been associated with the work temporarily. Their services have been the services of specialists for particular problems, and through them the bureau has not only been able to give to the public the practical results of applied science, but has contributed to pure science valuable knowledge of all forms of aquatic life.

The importance of the fishing interests of the work of the bureau in connection with the economic fisheries is widely appreciated and freely acknowledged. The statistical inquiries of the bureau afford the only adequate basis for determining the condition and trend of the fisheries and the results of legislation, protection, and cultivation. Among the numerous special matters in which the bureau has benefited the fisheries the following may be mentioned:

By bringing to the attention of American fishermen new methods and new apparatus, new fisheries have sometimes been established, and new fields exploited.

By the introduction of cod gill nets the winter cod fishery of New England was revolutionized. In a single season shortly after the use of such nets began a few Cape Ann (Gloucester) fishermen took by this means over 8,000,000 pounds of large-sized fish, and as much as $50,000 has sometimes been saved annually in the single item of bait.

By the dissemination of information regarding new fishing grounds of importance, new fisheries have been inaugurated. Thus when the abundance of halibut off the coast of Iceland was made known by the bureau, a fishery was begun which yielded from $70,000 to $100,000 annually to the New England fishermen.

Owing to the appalling mortality among the crews of the New England fishing vessels, caused in large part by the fouling of vessels at sea, the bureau many years ago undertook the introduction into the offshore fisheries of a type of craft which would combine large carrying capacity and great speed with enhanced safety. By correspondence, discussion in the daily press, personal interviews, exhibition of models and finally by the actual construction of a full-sized schooner (the Grampus), with the requisite qualities, the bureau was enabled to inaugurate a momentous change in the architecture of fishing vessels; so that for a long time the New England schooners have been constructed on the new lines, with a consequent minimizing of disasters and a decided increase in efficiency.

In other fisheries and regions the bureau has likewise advocated improved types of vessels and boats especially adapted to local conditions, and has published plans and specifications embodying the results of studies of the fishing fleets of the world.

The results of the bureau's efforts in this line in saving life and property, in increasing the usefulness of the vessels, and in improving the quality of the catch as landed, cannot be estimated, but the beneficial effects may be partly appreciated when it is stated that during the ten years ending in 1893, when the old types of vessels were in use, there were lost by foundering from this port of Gloucester alone, 22 vessels, valued at more than $400,000, with their crews of 895 men, while during the ten years ending in 1907, the losses from this cause aggregated only a fourth as many vessels and men.

Of Autin, on the subject of the slave trade in thinking that prelate for his efforts to suppress the latter, he writes that he has only to go back two or three generations to find negro slaves among his ancestors, and adds: "There may be relatives of mine who even now are forming part of the cargoes of slave vessels."

water, that does not come within the purview of the bureau.

It is conceived to be the better policy to expend a small amount of public money in making fish so abundant that they can be caught without restriction and hence to cheapen food to the people at large rather than to expend a much larger sum in preventing people from catching the few fish that still remain after generations of improvidence.

Public or government fish-culture in America exceeds in extent and importance that of all other countries combined. However, the neglect of some of the states to provide the minimum protection to certain species inhabiting interstate and international waters has not only negatively the fish-cultural work of the bureau and of the states themselves, but has practically inhibited it by preventing the possibility of securing an adequate supply of eggs, thus making desirable and necessary the placing of interstate and international waters under the jurisdiction of the general government.

At the end of the first ten years of the bureau's existence, the fishes that were being regularly cultivated were shad, carp, chinook salmon, Atlantic salmon, land-locked salmon, rainbow trout, brook trout and whitefish, in addition to which the propagation of several others had been undertaken experimentally. The list now is six times as long and the annual output is ten times the aggregate for the ten-year period ending in 1881.

The main energies are devoted to the important commercial fishes—shad, whitefish, lake trout, Pacific salmon, white perch, yellow perch, cod, flatfish and the lobster, which are hatched in lots of many millions annually. More widely popular, however, are the distributions of the fishes of the interior waters which are generally classed as game fishes. Although representing only about 10 per cent. of the output of the hatcheries, this feature of the work is very important, for it supplies schools of fish for public rivers, lakes and ponds, and for fishing preserves and private ponds and streams in all parts of the United States. The fishes most in demand for these purposes are the land-locked salmon, the different species of trout, the grayling, the basses, the crappies, the sunfishes, and the catfishes, but various others also are handled.

Fish-cultural stations are established by special act of congress, and their location and construction are determined after a careful survey of the available sites in a given state. The usual buildings are the hatchery proper, a residence for the superintendent and his family, and necessary outbuildings. At some stations there may also be power house, foreman's or fish-culturist's dwelling, mess hall and stable.

The only permanent marine hatcheries are in Maine and Massachusetts, where the cod, pollock, flatfish, and lobsters are hatched in immense numbers. Other sea fishes that have in previous years been artificially propagated and may again come under the hand of the fish-culturist are the haddock, the herring, the sheepshead, the sea bass, the mackerel, and the sea trout, some of which were hatched on the steamer Fish Hawk, in Chesapeake bay and Florida.

The fish-cultural work on the eastern coast streams was centered at six hatcheries and subhatcheries in 1909. At one of these the principal species handled is the Atlantic salmon, at four the shad, at three the yellow perch, at two the white perch, and at one the striped bass. Thus when the abundance of halibut off the coast of Iceland was made known by the bureau, a fishery was begun which yielded from $70,000 to $100,000 annually to the New England fishermen.

Owing to the appalling mortality among the crews of the New England fishing vessels, caused in large part by the fouling of vessels at sea, the bureau many years ago undertook the introduction into the offshore fisheries of a type of craft which would combine large carrying capacity and great speed with enhanced safety. By correspondence, discussion in the daily press, personal interviews, exhibition of models and finally by the actual construction of a full-sized schooner (the Grampus), with the requisite qualities, the bureau was enabled to inaugurate a momentous change in the architecture of fishing vessels; so that for a long time the New England schooners have been constructed on the new lines, with a consequent minimizing of disasters and a decided increase in efficiency.

In other fisheries and regions the bureau has likewise advocated improved types of vessels and boats especially adapted to local conditions, and has published plans and specifications embodying the results of studies of the fishing fleets of the world.

The results of the bureau's efforts in this line in saving life and property, in increasing the usefulness of the vessels, and in improving the quality of the catch as landed, cannot be estimated, but the beneficial effects may be partly appreciated when it is stated that during the ten years ending in 1893, when the old types of vessels were in use, there were lost by foundering from this port of Gloucester alone, 22 vessels, valued at more than $400,000, with their crews of 895 men, while during the ten years ending in 1907, the losses from this cause aggregated only a fourth as many vessels and men.

Of Autin, on the subject of the slave trade in thinking that prelate for his efforts to suppress the latter, he writes that he has only to go back two or three generations to find negro slaves among his ancestors, and adds: "There may be relatives of mine who even now are forming part of the cargoes of slave vessels."

"Yes, sir, I shot the leopard on the spot."

"Which one?"—Lippincott's.

When I telephoned him this afternoon he said he thought it might be safe for you to start away by the end of the week.

"I know. He told me the same thing. But I feel that we'll never go. I never postponed anything yet that didn't turn out badly. I once postponed a wedding, and the marriage never took place."

has even bought our berth in the sleeper.

"It is unfortunate, but I don't know what you can do except sit down and wait for four or five days. It may be safe then for you to start away."

When her husband got home that evening Mrs. Ackroyd was weeping.

"Don't take it so hard, dear," he said. "It might be a good deal worse."

Silas Carter's Romance

By Carl Jenkins

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

There was nothing wrong about Silas Carter. He was a strapping young man who worked in a sawmill and ate three square meals a day. When evening came he sat down to store his mind with knowledge. He couldn't borrow Shakespeare or American history and, in consequence, he borrowed romances. They were mostly to knights and chivalry and rescues of distressed damsels.

After reading for two or three years Silas got the idea that he was a chivalier, and that the distressed damsel would sooner or later have to view. He didn't say anything about it. It might be that he wasn't a chivalier, and it might be that the distressed damsel would be detained on the road.

One night when he was calling on Miss Eunice Debee, the daughter of a village he casually observed: "Eunice, I love you and want you to be my wife."

"I will," she replied. Eunice had known Silas for a long time, and had come to realize that she loved him, and why shouldn't she have answered that way? Why blush and stick a finger in her mouth and reply that she would see her father about it? She did just as a plain, sensible girl always does under the circumstances—she waited for Silas to say more.

He began and ended right there. If the distressed damsel appeared he would tell Eunice that he had changed his mind; if she didn't then they would get married some day. Eunice continued to be a good, plain girl, and Silas kept his eyes open for what was coming.

It came one July day. A young lady from the city, stopping at a summer hotel in the village, came down to the mill pond to fish. Silas was in the mill yard, wrestling the sawing for two weeks he wrote to her. He wrote that he took his pen in hand to hope that she was well, and that his own health was never better. He wrote that the sawmill business was good, and that he expected to have his wages raised to $22 a month. He thought of her often, he said. In fact, he had driven a stake at the spot where she had fallen in, and went there to look at it five or six times a day. Then he copied a verse of poetry and ended the letter by saying that he hoped for an answer by the return of the mail.

He didn't receive one, however. Two weeks dragged along, and then one night as he was calling on Eunice he said: "Eunice, about our getting married."

"Yes, Silas."

"I think we'd better."

"Very well."

She waited for him to ask her to name the day, but he had nothing further to say on the subject. A bright idea had occurred to him. He had written "In haste" on the envelope of his letter, but as he thought he may have made the postmaster mad and the epistle had been torn up, he decided to write again.

He took his pen in hand with firmer grip this time, as his wages had been raised to $22 per month. He hoped for an answer by the return of the mail, and on a fortnight none had come. One mail a day reached the village post office, but he inquired five times a day, so as to make sure of missing nothing. Another two weeks and no letter.

Was Chevalier Silas in love with the damsel he had rescued? He was. He didn't kick around nights and dream of her, but he loved her gallantly—chivalrously—knighly—this same as the heroes of his romances had loved. Perhaps the reason she hadn't answered was that she was coyly waiting for him to come to the city and tell of his education. Her mother might have tied her up in the garret or her father thrust her into a dungeon deep because she had told of her love for him. For three days Silas debated as to what the Chevalier St. Aubyn would have done under the circumstances, and then he left for the city.

Having the damsel's address, it was easy to find her father's home. He found it early in the morning. Just as the father was emerging with a very strong cigar in his mouth. He gave Silas a looking over, uttered a "humph" to himself, and then asked: "Well, what is it?"

"Your daughter was up at Belleville in July," stammered the young man.

"Well, what of it?"

"She tumbled into the mill pond."

"And got wet. Well, what of that?"

"I—I work in the sawmill there."

"I thought so. Go on."

"I pulled her out of the pond."

"Oh, you did? Did it strain your back any?"

"No, sir."

"If it did, try a porrine plaster."

"But I saved her life, sir," continued Silas, "and she said she'd never forget it."

"And I don't think she will. She lost her false hair and complexion, I believe."

"And she asked me to call on her if I was ever in town."

"And being as you are in town, you have come to call. Well, you can go in and interview the cook if you wish. My daughter has been married six weeks and is still away on a bridal trip."

"Anything about you, but if you really saved her life, why, have a cigar with me."

Silas reached home that night at 11 o'clock. His jaw was set and his look was determined. The villagers had said that she was not to be trusted, but he was not to be misled. He walked to the house of Eunice's father and around to her window, and, in response to his calls, a head was poked out and a voice exclaimed:

"My stars, Silas, but what's happened?"

"Nothing yet, but something's going to. You be ready at nine o'clock in the morning to be married! There's been fooling enough about it!"

Red Deer's Winter Home.

The winter home of the American red deer is a very interesting. When the deer begins to fly the leader of the herd guides them to some sheltered spot where provender is plentiful. Here as the snow falls they pack it down, tramping out a considerable space, while about them the snow mounds higher and higher until they cannot get out of the hole. From the main opening, or "yard," as it is called, tramped out paths lead to the nearby trees and shrubbery which supply them with food. In this way they manage to pass the winter in comparative peace and safety.—St. Nicholas.

$500 For a Scram.

"Nobody knows what risks men of wealth run but the men themselves," said one of them. "I know one thing. Nothing could pay me to admit a woman to my office when I'm in it alone. I did once. Mr. Rockefeller, there is even a better version in the same psalm—'Thou shalt not be with all; my cup runneth over.'"
